3-PLY ELECTION PROBE ON HERE

Boy, 12, Flashes To Victory By Nose In Derby

Loren Wiley Rushes Past Rival In Last 30 Feet To Capture Soap Box Crown Before Crowd of 8,000; Lone Accident Mars Races; Car Swerves, Hits Boy, 8.

Piloting his tiny red, white and blue racer down Sturges avenue hill to nose out his opponent in a "photo-finish," Loren Wiley, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Wiley, Indiana avenue, yesterday afternoon became Mansfield's 1938 Soap Box Derby champion.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 saw the youthful driver wheel his gravity-powered speedster over the finish tape to win the annual kid classic in 31.4 seconds and set a new track record eclipsing by 2.6 seconds the record established by Lester Griebling in the first running of the derby last year.

Young Wiley, his face flushed from the afternoon's torrid heat, shot over the finish line to win not only the city title but the right to compete in the All-American and international finals Aug. 14 at Derby Downs in Akron.

It was the last of 26 heats in which youthful pilots had participated, when Wiley crouched low behind the steering wheel of his motorless mount, poised on the starting blocks against A. J. Watson, 371 Marion avenue, who was huddled behind the cowl of his yellow speedster.

As the blocks were dropped both cars rolled away to a fast start with Watson's yellow racer taking a slight advantage. Both cars held the positions until they entered the stretch when Wiley shot past Watson to win by inches.

A total of 49 cars participated in the derby. There were 23 entrants in the Class A division and 26 in the class B division.

The original field had consisted of 78 entries. Before the race, however, 29 had been withdrawn because of failure to complete their cars or because of some mechanical difficulties.

Worked 6 Weeks on Racer.

Wiley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren Wiley, Indiana avenue, worked for nearly six weeks on the tiny racer, patterned after the car which won last's year's international race at Akron.

The coaster shot down the 950-foot derby hill at a speed of more than 30 miles an hour to barely nose out Watson and brought to a close more than two hours of racing.

Watson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Todd Watson, 371 Marion avenue, who was eliminated in the 1937 running of the derby, piloted his little yellow speedster to victory in the first heat of the race, defeating Robert Brooks, 32 West Prospect street, and Tom Sutter of Shelby.

In the class A finals Watson sped to victory over Henry Ford, 105 South Diamond street, and Robert Mercer, 29 Baldwin avenue.

With an average speed of 30 miles an hour in four trips down the course, Wiley's time was faster than that established by Lester Greibling, last year's champion.

Wiley raced across the finish line in 33.4 seconds ahead of John Butler, 232 Newman street and James Sheads, 12, 194½ West Fourth street, to win the Class B finals following a disputed heat in the quarter-finals in which his car came close to being wrecked.

It was the third heat in the quarter finals that Wiley, Edward Loeckel and William Cline, Bellville, rolled away from the starting blocks. At midway down the hill Wiley and Loeckel shot ahead. At the three-quarter pole with Wiley out in front by a scant car length, Loeckel swerved from his lane and struck the rear of the Wiley coaster.

A few seconds later both cars flashed across the tape in what appeared to be a dead heat and Derby Director Donald Cram ordered the race re-run.

An unfortunate accident marked the run-off race between Loeckel and Wiley, however.

With Wiley leading, Loeckel's car suddenly swerved off the course and struck Rodney Blahnik at about the three-quarter mark.

Spectator Injured.

Young Blahnik, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blahnik, 54 Parkwood boulevard, was taken to the hospital where doctors found he had suffered a fractured skull and a fracture of the left leg. Hospital attaches said his condition at noon today was "fair."

Police Lieut. Bruce Friday, stationed at the point near where the accident occurred, saw Loeckel's car swerve, and sought to keep the car from going into the crowd behind him. His effort failed, the car running over his foot, slightly injuring it. The Blahnik boy was standing in back of Friday when he was hit. Loeckel was unhurt, and the heat went to Wiley.

The Crowd Roars---A Thrilling Finish---Congrats, Champ!

Here are three views of yesterday's Soap Box derby, staged on Sturges hill and sponsored by The News-Journal, Y. M. C. A. and Mohican Chevrolet company. Top left shows a portion of the crowd at the finish line. The entire course was lined with spectators, more than 8,000 witnessing the event. Top right shows the thrilling finish of the race for the championship, with the cars within a few feet of the finish line. At the left, only inches in front, is Loren (Sonny) Wiley, 12, the winner. At the right is A. J. Watson, 14, the runner-up. Bottom picture shows Watson, left, shaking hands with Wiley, the champion, at the finish of the race.

Cars of All Colors and Styles Mark Derby; Other Highlights

The two most beautiful cars in yesterday's Soap Box Derby—from a strictly feminine viewpoint—were those of the Todd brothers. Harvey Todd, who was a heat winner, had a car of symmetrical lines, done in a French blue with a silver nose and silver letters. The insignia on it was the Indian "thunder bird," outlined in silver. The seat was upholstered in dark blue corduroy. His brother, Dave Todd, the runner-up in last year's final, had a car of similar design, finished in ivory with scarlet trim and upholstering in bright red leather. He had the same bird insignia. Dave, incidentally ran the first heat with his brother and lost out.

Perhaps the most unusual car was that of Bob Fox, 10, son of Sam Fox, who entered the derby for the first time this year. Bob's car had a hood shaped like a dragon's back and was painted a dragon red with aluminum bands for a trim. Bob worked like a Trojan to build his car and was pretty disappointed that he didn't win a heat—but he's starting today to make plans for entering next year's races.

One of the most enthusiastic contenders was Bill Zimmerman, 13, son of Major James Zimmerman, World war flier. Bill had one of the snootiest cars in the derby; it was the "Buick Bullet," an all white car with a body like an airplane, even to the head rest in the cockpit. Bill is one of the few boys in the world that has lived through an airplane crash. He was with his father when the latter crashed at Gages field five years ago. The youngster lost five pounds while working on his racer.

One of the cars that attracted the most attention—and probably represented the most work was that snappy little number of inlay wood. It was built like a speedboat and of the same narrow strips of polished oak. It was low and narrow, only 12 inches across the widest part of the hood. It belonged to John Butler, and showed a lot of pep, qualifying for the B finals.

The only cylindrical body was that of the "Sky Rocket" driven by Robert Fackler. It had a white body, built like a rocket with a pointed nose.

Charles "Lucky" McGee, who drove one of the Warner Brothers cars, had built his car a replica of the powerful racer used by Louie Meyers, winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race. It was a bright yellow with red wheels and the principles of knee action and free-wheeling were incorporated in the car. The back wheels were mounted on a moveable beam.

Bad luck overtook Bobby Brooks, 13, driver of A-1 car, before he even had a chance to try the long course. While jockeying

JAPAN SUBMITS BID FOR PEACE

Proposes End of Fighting on Border, Settlement of Dispute With Reds.

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—The Japanese government today proposed to Soviet Russia the cessation of hostilities on the Siberian-Manchoukuoan border and terms for settlement of their dispute.

The foreign office announced today the proposal was made by Kensuke-Horinouchi, Japanese vice minister of foreign affairs, in a two-hour conference with Constantin Smetanin, Soviet charge d'affaires. At the same time the two nations exchanged stern protests over the border conflict.

It said Horinouchi offered Smetanin a settlement based on "a broad view of the situation."

The terms were not announced but they were understood to include:

1. Japan to withdraw from the territory around Changkufeng Hill, near the junction point of Siberian, Manchoukuoan and Korean frontiers, where fighting has been going on sporadically since Sunday.

2. Russia not to undertake to reoccupy the area.

3. A neutral zone to exist pending demarcation of the frontier by a commission.

Sonny Wins With Rabbit's Foot, Now He's Worried!

Good Luck Charm Belongs to Newark Champ, His Buddy, But Both Can't Wear It at Akron.

By JANE WILLIAMS

When Sonny Wiley rode across the finish line and became Mansfield's new Soap Box Derby champion, he wore two very important emblems—his medal as last year's runner-up in Class B, and a sleek rabbit's foot on a nickel chain. It was the rabbit's foot that did the trick, and from it hangs a load of worry for the 12-year-old youngster who will compete in the All-American finals at Akron on Aug. 14.

That rabbits foot is a lulu; it has carried two champs over the finish line in a period of four days. It belongs to Harold Cooperrider who rode to the Newark championship last Sunday and who will also compete at Akron.

Crossed Fingers, Help, Too!

Harold and Sonny are buddies; the Mansfield boy went to Newark last Sunday and kept his fingers crossed—on both hands—every time Harold started down the course. Both boys agreed that the crossed fingers sort of supplemented the rabbit's foot that Harold wore. So yesterday Harold came to Mansfield to root for Sonny—and brought the magic good luck piece with him.

"Wear it," he urged, "you can't fail." And so Sonny wore it and became champion. Maybe you can begin to see now why the mess of worry for Sonny.

Two champ-eens can't wear the same rabbit foot in the same race!

300 HUNT PRO

Scouts and War Vets Search for Missing Lima Man.

LIMA—(U.P.)—A searching party of 200 Boy Scouts and 100 war veterans today beat through country side adjoining the Springbrook country club in the hope of finding Stanley Fisher, 22-year-old golf professional, missing since Monday night.

Sheriff William V. Daley believed Fisher may have been kidnaped or killed by men who robbed him. There was evidence of a struggle in the club's caddy house. Fisher's empty purse was found outside, and his automobile was missing.

Private detectives have been retained by Prosecutor Robert F. Jones.

Friends of Fisher pointed out that he was of exceptionally good character and probably would not have left voluntarily. They feared he had been slain and his body hidden.

BROTHERS DROWN

Lee shouted "I can't make it, Jim," and sank. James also was drowned while trying to save the younger boy.

HEAT CONTINUES TO GRIP NATION

Mercury Hits 89 at Noon in Mansfield; Local Showers Due Tomorrow.

Oppressive heat continued to grip Mansfield and most of the nation today, with temperatures here at a humid 89 at noon—one degree below yesterday's high of 90.

There was little indication of immediate relief, the forecast for Ohio predicting showers in the southern portion of the state tonight, and in the north perhaps tomorrow. The showers were described as of "local" character, and not likely to bring a very sharp drop in temperatures.

Western states, harder hit than Ohio, obtained a measure of relief today, as showers fell, and the Great Lakes area was somewhat cooler.

In New England, 90-degree temperatures were reported, while New York sweltered under similar conditions.

Last night's low in Mansfield was 71, and at 10 a. m., the mer-

GOES TO POLLS

Tennessee Election Tests Political Factions.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Tennessee voters marked ballots today for a United States senator, governor, and public utilities commissioner in a Democratic primary devoid of outstanding political issues, but important as a testing ground for two powerful political factions.

Interest aroused in the fight between National Democratic Committeeman E. H. Crump of Memphis and Gov. Gordon Browning for supremacy caused observers to forecast a record vote of around 400,000.

Crump is head of the Shelby county (Memphis) organization and Browning is seeking renomination. Crump backed Browning two years ago but this year threw his support to Prentice Cooper of Shelbyville for the governorship.

Browning charged that efforts would be made "to steal the election" in Memphis, and only this week abandoned plans to send National Guardsmen there.

Pearl White, Star of Silent Days of Films, Dies in Paris

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—Pearl White, first heroine of the old American movie serial thrillers, who always did her own dare-devil stunts, died today in the American hospital.

She was 49 and had been ill for several weeks of a liver ailment.

In the days when the motion picture business was young, movie audiences sat on the edge of their seats thrilling to the "Perils of Pauline," an adventure-packed serial in which the beauteous heroine managed to reach death's door at the end of each chapter, never to die.

At the opening of the next episode she escaped, only to get into deeper trouble again. Besides the "Perils of Pauline" there were the "Exploits of Elaine" and a dozen other serials of the same melodramatic cast.

Pearl White grew rich on it. She went to Paris in the early twenties, and afterward saw little of the United States.

Miss White was born in Greenwood, Mo., March 4, 1889. She made her debut at six as "Little Eva" in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and her parents got $5 a week for her work.

At 13 she was with a traveling circus as bare-back rider, and several years later went on the stage. She went to the films in 1913.

At the top of her fame she earned $10,000 a week.

ASSERTS EMPIRE OBTAINS WAGE CUT AGREEMENT

Dow-Jones Service Says Cuts Range Up to 25 Per Cent; Officials Deny It.

Despite insistent denials from company officials, the Dow-Jones business news service today asserted without qualification that Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company of Mansfield has put into effect a wage reduction ranging up to 25 per cent, affecting between 600 and 700 workers, The News-Journal learned today.

James M. Hill, president of the company, could not be reached up to noon for a statement, but on previous occasions has flatly denied any change in the company's wage structure.

Denies Wage Change.

Yesterday, Ralph Jenkins, assistant to Hill, said:

"There has been absolutely no change in our base wage rate."

Officials of Delano lodge, Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, an affiliate of the CIO, have also denied any change in the wage rate. Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee, another CIO body, yesterday also denied that any SWOC unions had agreed to wage reductions.

The story carried by Dow-Jones service said that the wage reduction had been reached at a conference between employes and management, without an agreement with CIO.

Yesterday, it was learned, Iron Age, a steel trade publication, said that an unnamed midwest steel company employing about 700 men had reduced wages, with cuts ranging up to 25 per cent. Iron Age said that the reduction had been made with the agreement of the SWOC, differing in that respect with the statement made today by the financial service.

Iron Age also said that while there were reports that the company in question was Empire, a telephone call to the plant brought denials from the management, and that the identity of the company "remained a mystery."

The Dow-Jones report also said that efforts were being made to attach "great significance" to the Empire move as a possible in-

STATE AUDITOR VISITS CITY IN OWN INQUIRY

Seeks to Find If Employes of State Are Campaigning for Davey on State's Time.

ELECTION BOARD WARNED

Secretary of State Cautions Against Violations; Claims Pensioners Intimidated.

A three-way election probe was opened in Richland county today by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and Secretary of State William J. Kennedy.

Ferguson was in Mansfield to personally investigate reports that state employes are campaigning for Gov. Martin L. Davey on the state's time and that old age pensioners are being intimidated to vote for Davey.

Ordered to Reject Ballots.

Kennedy today ordered the Richland county board of elections to refuse a number of disabled voters' ballots which allegedly had been collected from old age pensioners and taken to the elections office by employes of the aid for aged division, Associated Press dispatches from Columbus said.

Although election board officials here said they had no proof that all of the ballots were marked by pensioners, they said all of them were voted by "disabled old persons."

Board officials added that applicants for disabled voters' ballots had submitted blank certificates signed by physicians and in some instances by one physician signing for another. In both cases the applications were refused, board members said.

Names on Blank Certificates.

The secretary of state said party workers had obtained doctors' signatures on the blank certificates and then turned them in to the election board.

Kennedy warned county board of election officials throughout the state to be on the lookout for violations of the absent and disabled voters ballot law, after reports of attempts to vote by unqualified residents had been received.

Richland election officials said they had refused nearly 30 applications for disabled voters ballots in the past week because the applicant was not a registered voter, or the application did not contain the signatures of two qualified electors.

A report submitted to the secretary of state by James Welker, an investigator for his office, described pre-election conditions as "deplorable, particularly in Richland, Athens and Gallia counties."

"There is no doubt old age pensioners have been intimidated

NEARING HOME

Corrigan in Fog as New York Welcome Draws Near.

S. S. MANHATTAN, AT SEA—(AP)—Douglas Corrigan grinned with pleasure today as he stood at the rail of this New York-bound liner and looked forward to the welcome awaiting him.

The ship moved at half speed through fog. Corrigan was in a fog, too, or at least he said he was as he remembered all that has happened to him in the month past—the flight in the "old crate" from California to New York, the takeoff for home, and his surprise at finding himself in Dublin, of all places.

He knew, of course, what awaited him in New York, for he had got more than a dim idea of New York's frenzied greetings a couple of days before he started his wild transatlantic flight, when the city went a little balmy over Howard Hughes and his four world-circling companions.

Charges Deputy Sheriff With Slaying Doctor's Wife

CONVICTED BOY GOES BACK ON STAND TODAY

Accuses Father of Sweetheart of Second Murder Under Cross-Examination.

BULLETIN

SOUTH PARIS, Me.—(U.P.)—Nineteen-year-old Paul (Buddy) Dwyer testified today that Francis M. Carrol visited him at the county jail shortly after the youth was arrested for two murders, for one of which the former deputy sheriff is now on trial, and warned him to "keep my mouth shut."

(By Associated Press)

SOUTH PARIS, Me.—An assertion by Paul N. Dwyer, 19, that former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll slew not only Dr. James G. Littlefield, 67, for whose killing Dwyer is serving a life sentence, but also strangled Mrs. Littlefield, highlighted testimony today as Dwyer was recalled to the stand.

After charging the father of his one-time sweetheart with the South Paris physician's murder, the slender schoolboy who became a "lifer" eight months ago topped five drama-packed hours as a witness yesterday bp accusing Carroll of slaying the 63-year-old Mrs. Littlefield last Oct. 15, two days after he allegedly killed her husband.

Accused Man Listens.

Carroll, a 43-year-old war veteran, listened with drawn features as Dwyer, seemingly unwilling to testify about Mrs. Littlefield's death, made the accusation under cross-examination by defense counsel.

Dwyer also testified the prosecution now possessed letters he said Barbara Carroll, the defendant's pretty 17-year-old daughter, had written him purportedly describing illicit relations with her father.

During Dwyer's trial for murder last November—which seemed to have closed the sordid story—a confession was introduced in which the youth said he had killed the physician and his wife, his former benefactors.

Dr. Littlefield was killed, Dwyer said in his new version of the slayings yesterday, when the elderly physician threatened to send Carroll to prison for alleged immoral relations with pretty Barbara Carroll.

Dwyer accused Carroll threatened him with death if he did not shoulder blame for the killings.

'Sheer Accident' Blamed in Failure to Identify Print

LONDON, O.—(AP)—Failure of the state bureau of identification to identify the fingerprints of a fugitive from the London prison farm was described today as a "sheer accident" by E. J. Yantis, bureau chief.

"It wouldn't happen more than once in a million times," Yantis added in defense of his staff, more than 93 per cent of which are prison farm convicts.

The fugitive, Stewart Bennedum, 38, of Dayton, was held in the county jail here for three days under the name of Dayton Cunningham while officers of Madison and adjoining counties searched for him. He was released after his fingerprints were sent to the bureau for examination and the bureau reported it had nothing on him.

Yantis said that when Deputy Sheriff Earl Lamb brought in Bennedums fingerprints, the man's card was being copied in a photographic darkroom.

"We had no Dayton Cunningham listed in our records and the man in charge was not aware that some of the cards were being reproduced," Yantis explained.

There seems to be some doubt as to the fishing skill of Sheriff E. P. Long. On a recent fishing excursion into north Michigan, Long tossed his bait to the finny family daily, and at the end all he had to show for his efforts was a "catch" just two inches long. Members of the party have proof of the size of the fish in a picture.

One good turn deserves another . . . Mrs. Katherine Van Tilburg, 322 West Fourth street, read in this column yesterday of the little girl who had lost her pup . . . Mrs. Van Tilburg had found him, given him a bath and fed him and kept him over night . . . The reason she was so good to the small stranger was because her own dog, Jiggs, who had been a pet in her home for five years, was lost or stolen. He disappeared about three weeks ago and she still hopes that she may locate him. Jiggs is a brindle bull terrier, with a white "front" that extends from his shoulders to his toes. If real life were like the movies. Mrs. Van Tilburg would find her pet to repay her for returning Spotty to his small owner.

STARTS DRIVE ON CHISELING

Relief Administration Seeks to Cut 20,000 Off Rolls Within Month.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The state relief administration launched today the first part of a program designed to cut approximately 20,000 chiselers from Ohio's relief rolls by Sept. 1.

New registration blanks were sent to county commissioners to segregate relief clients into "employable" and "unemployables."

"There is no intention to deny relief to those in need who can not help themselves," said William C. Dixon, new state relief director, "but many persons now receiving state aid could find steady employment if they desired. Our first concern is to weed out these parasites. Those unable to work constitute a permanent problem with which we plan to deal later."

The state's relief load is approximately 105,000 cases.

"There is every indication that through re-registration we can cut this by between 10 and 20 per cent within the month of August, Dixon said.

Local directors will be vested with responsibility for finding jobs for relief clients unable to obtain employment in private industry or in the Works Progress administration, the state director added.

Dissension was stirred up in the ranks of the Ohio Federation of Labor today by the bitter fight of Gov. Martin L. Davey and Charles Sawyer for the Democratic nomination for governor.

A session of the federation's convention in Cincinnati ended in boos and shouts last night as partisans of the candidates argued their merits.

Francis J. Dillon of Toledo told the labor delegates that "if Sawyer wants to be nominated he must tell the citizens of Ohio he will never be a stool-pigeon of John L. Lewis."

Sawyer had been indorsed by Labor's Non-Partisan league, an affiliate of Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

Peter Doll, president of the Cincinnati local of the Intenational Teamsters' union, jumped to the floor to shout:

"I don't want the delegates to think Davey is 100 per cent for labor and that Sawyer isn't."

Thomas J. Donnelly, secretary of the state federation, recently informed its members that Governor Davey's labor record was "100 per cent" and that he deserved the support of organized labor. Donnelly also had described Sawyer's record as "good."

This action brought a sharp retort from the Columbus Federation of Labor last night. It adopted a resolution describing the governor as a "strikebreaker" and asserting the statement that his labor record was 100 per cent was "utterly false."

Sawyer, speaking before the Teamsters' union in Cincinnati, said the campaign issue was "whether the Democratic party shall give good government to the people of Ohio."

Governor Davey was suffering with a cold and evidently fatigued as he continued a strenuous speaking tour through central Ohio, heading toward Delaware today.

He promised old age pensioners at Bellefontaine that their pensions would be increased again if there was another surplus in state liquor revenues.

STATE CLAIMS BOY TRIED TO POISON FRIENDS

Schoolmate, Teacher Tell of Trent Having Fatal Poisons in His Possession.

BULLETIN

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The state rested its case against Lindberg Trent, 15-year-old confessed slayer of Shirley Ann Woodburn, 6, today with testimony of a neuro-psychiatrist that the "youth was "sane but a psychopathic type."

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI—Two physicians waited their turn in court today to finish the state's bizarre story of the life of 15-year-old Lindberg Trent, facing a murder charge for the attack-slaying of Shirley Ann Woodburn, 6.

The "problem child's" defense was prepared to call seven witnesses, including psychiatrists.

William Seyfried, 13, a schoolmate of Trent, supported the testimony yesterday of his teacher that the boy attempted to give a deadly poison to other school youths

Facing the three-judge court as young Trent listened intently, Seyfried explained:

"He had it in a paper and asked me it I wanted some fudge. I told him I knew what it was and he had no business playing with the poison, and he just laughed."

Mother at Trial.

The instructor, John R. Abercrombie, previously told the court that in 1937 Trent had scraped a deadly crystalline from a metal-plate receptacle and placed it in the children's lunch boxes.

Trent's mother, Mrs. Ruth Daniels Trent, was among the spectators.

Asked by a defense attorney if Trent was not shunned because of his shabby clothing, Seyfried replied sharply:

"No sir, I don't care about the dress of any of my friends."

The boy entered a plea of guilty to the murder charge and a three-judge court is hearing his life story to determine the sentence for the slaying of Shirley Ann near her home. Her body, slashed with a knife 27 times, was found last Memorial day.

NAZIS PROTEST

Charge Czech Planes Flew Over German Border.

BERLIN —(U.P.)— Germany protested vigorously to Czechoslovakia today against an alleged incursion of German territory by a Czechoslovak airplane, the semi-official D. N. B. news agency reported.

The agency reported yesterday from Glatz, 12 miles from the Czechoslovak frontier, that two Czech planes circled about the town for some time. Attempts by the crews of the planes to photograph Glatz were observed, the agency said.

"The German minister to Prague protested sharply to the Prague government," today's announcement said, "and demanded the punishment of those responsible for the intentional flight over the German frontier by Czech planes."

FAIR ENOUGH!

New Plan Comes Up But It Ought Not Be Given Too Much Consideration

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Out of Los Angeles, that promissory land which produced the plans of Upton Sinclair and Dr. Townsend, there comes at last a proposal combining the kernels, as it were, of both these panaceas but without their faults.

It is the invention of Prof. Oscar Bush, world-wide congressman, who asks a mandate from the citizens of the 14th California district as their representative in a lesser body, the congress of the United States.

Prof. Oscar Bush was elected world-wide congressman at the world-wide congress held at the regular meeting place of that body at 648 South Broadway, Los Angeles, in June, 1937. A pioneer, as he admits, in new age thinking, the professor celebrates impromptu, and one day, while cogitating in a church house, awaiting his turn to drench the congregation with a flow of wisdom, he discovered afloat in the springs of his intellect a method of causing money to be and of distributing the same without taxation or other inconvenience.

He has communicated his plan to President Roosevelt, and, though he may be overwishful, he perceives presidential favor, if not indorsement, in the fact that within three days Mr. Marvin McIntyre, the president's No. 3 man, thanked him for his courtesy in submitting his suggestions.

Unlike Mr Roosevelt's own Ponzi plan, Prof. Oscar Bush's system entails no bothersome problems of interest, principal or ultimate come-uppance. It is a miracle.

"He is new age minded," Prof. Bush says of himself, using the third person the better to extol a genius of his own discovery and avoid immodest seeming. "He has made a life study of truth, money and economics. He receives messages from the ether and is a medium through which these messages are transcribed to humanity.

"About a year ago his latest message about created money came while sitting in a small church waiting to be called as the speaker of the evening. He gave them a talk on created money, a thing he knew nothing about five minutes before. He showed how money can be created without taxation, without confiscation and no printing press money. He spoke of a system of coupons which he refrred to as God's coupons and that no person can take from you. He said you will get them and you may cash them.

"These coupons are distributed to each person. They come in book form—one hundred coupons in each book. They are not money. You can cash them for money and the coupon is canceled, hence the slogan 'free money.' Free money is created just the same as God created man, beast and all other things."

Within the space of five minutes Prof. Oscar Bush thought of this, but it will be seen at a glance that he has eliminated the fatal fault in the plan of the good Mahatma Sinclair, who made toil a condition for the success of his idea and wrecked his wagon on the detestable truth that toil makes people tired, thus losing the governorship to Mr. Merriam, the champion bridge dedicator of the Golden West.

He has conquered also the cruel discrimination against orphans, the flaw which aroused the humane instincts of a sentimental nation and condemned the Townsend plan. Orphans have ever been objects of pity in this land, and when it became apparent that persons below the age of 60 without living parents to whom they could look for support would be excluded from the benefits of $200 a month public opinion crushed the doctor's fallacy.

Prof. Bush's five-minute plan plainly substitutes created money for toil and removes the harsh inequality which Dr. Townsend imposed on orphans. When one book of coupons has been exhausted the government will issue another, and so on, honoring the coupons with money voted by congress in the form of dividends upon the national wealth.

"Would it be possible to distribute these coupon books by Christmas?" the professor asked Mr. Roosevelt in his letter of explanation. "This would be easy if you will answer the big question with the little word 'Yes'."

It were unkind to advise Prof. Oscar Bush that he is not the first explorer to stumble, blinded by the glare of golden streets and spires into the El Dorado of the ether. Yet truth requires that he be gently told that he was not there first, but entered by a different gate long after Prof David Cushman Coyle had settled down to play house.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—This is Hollywood again, all right. Be gone a week, a month, a year. Come back, and the first day you can take up where you left off.

The usual stack of mail, including accumulated mountains of publicity copy. The usual preview notices, telephone messages.

On the streets, the usual scare heads: Lupe Again Seeks Divorce. (What, again?) Or maybe it's Joan and Tone part. Or Somebody Else. And the usual impulse to hurry back and do a screed on the Pity of It All, or Why Can't Hollywood Marriages Endure. (Impulse nobly resisted.) After all, when a movie marriage lasts, that's NEWS.

And the Richard Arlens have said their au revoirs, with the usual regrets. That was another of those ideal Hollywood marriages. If I were in pictures I'd go gunning for the first scribe who called my marriage "ideal."

And they're still casting "Gone With the Wind" and announcing a new starting date . . . Last one was September, new one is January . . . . So next August or thereabouts we'll be seeing it—with Norma Shearer not in it. Private hunch is that premature casting announcement was but a straw in the wind—and the straw is out of sight in the cyclone from the opposite direction.

And while on the subject — which is also usual—there's a Scarlett test which knocked 'em for the loop. Of all people you'd not suspect, Frances Dee. They say she's just about perfect.

And then there's the usual casting talk—Paul Muni isn't going to play Juarez in "The Phantom Crown" after all—It's going to be Edward G. Robinson instead—But today Paul Muni IS going to play Juarez in "The Phantom Crown" after all.

The usual news, too, about Gloria Swanson. She is NOT going to make "Lady in the News" for Republic. She is NOT going to make anything for Republic. This makes Gloria the signing-est of movie stars. She signed with Metro, Columbia, Republic in turn and hasn't made a picture yet Understood here she'll do a New York play—which might make her a lady-in-the-news again. Meanwhile the movie script, originally planned for Frieda Inescort, but revised for Swanson, is being revised again for—Inescort.

The usual title changes. "Ca- will be "The World's Applause" because the producers fear the man in the street would think the new George Raft-er a foreign flicker. Fear also the same man in the street wouldn't know what caviar is.

And the customary "big excitement"—this time Uncle Sam's legal look-see into the picture business- about which the rank and file of Hollywood aren't concerned in the least, although the big shots are plenty annoyed. Hollywood isn't really Hollywood unless it has a "big excitement."

It's Hollywood again, all right. And if this doesn't sound properly bored, the act has failed. It was an act, you know, because like most of the scribes who pretend to be bored with Hollywood I can't think of a place I'd rather be.

Styles for Evening, Daytime Have Plenty of Feminine Appeal

A filmy frock of ivory chiffon embroidered in colorful carnations and spattered with diamante "dewdrops" is Mary Maguire's choice for moonlight nights. She catches her curls on top of her head in the much-discussed coiffure which is gaining prestige in America.

Rows of blue stitching accent collar, cuffs and belt of this summer frock whose white rayon fabric is indicative of an outstanding fabric trend. An embroidered bouquet on the shoulder contributes bright color. More stitching appears on the brim of the soft blue hat.

Divorce Laws Farcial Adviser Says

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority On Problems Of Love And Marriage.

A woman, who says she reads my column occasionally, accuses me of encouraging parasitical women. These women, she says, are childless, living in luxury on alimony awarded them by the courts after a couple of years or months of married life.

Please let me say now that the woman must read this column very occasionally, indeed, when she charges me with advocating that type of female racket. My contention has always been that when a woman is young, able-bodied and has no children to keep her at home or worry her to tatters wondering what is happening to them when she is out working, there is positively no reason why she should expect a former husband to pay her bills.

The case is different when there are children. And no man, sauntering down the primrose path with his second lady love, should leave children, for whom he is responsible morally and physically, unprovided for. It is in such cases that I urge women, with all the vehemence at my command, to go to the Legal Aid Society or the Family Court if they cannot afford to engage a lawyer.

The trouble with my correspondent—and I'm not denying that it's a very real trouble too—is that she and her husband both have to work to help pay alimony to his former wife. But here are some extracts from her letter:

"We women have done a great deal of talking and fighting for 'equality.' But I can see no 'equality' in living with a man for a few years (or months) which entitles women to financial security and leisure for the rest of their lives.

"Even home-making women who have babies and do an extraordinarily fine job of housekeeping generally do it under better working conditions, and in more pleasant surroundings than a man who is up against the life and death struggle of the business world. We may have longer hours, but we have no supervision in them.

"Incidentally, my husband and I both work, while his former wife attends club meetings and plays cards, to pass the time. We have never had any children, simply because we couldn't afford to have them."

There has been a good deal of talk lately about remedying some very poor laws on the statute books which govern family life. Our divorce laws are often comic opera stuff. They're positively immoral, conceding as they do that a man may be married in one state and not married in another. And such laws decide the legitimacy or the illegitimacy of the children, as the case may be.

Any bottle may be made leakproof if after cork is tightly fitted into it, it is dipped in paraffin. Tie a piece of heavy paper over the top to make it more secure. Picnic parties will appreciate this suggestion.

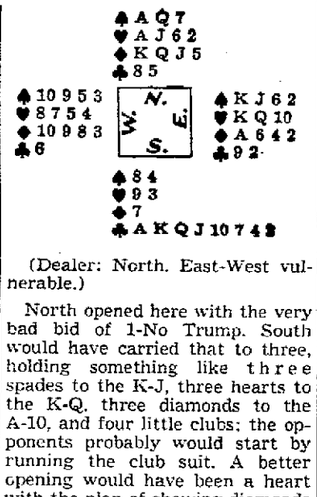
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

PLEASE DON'T CROWD

FINE PLAYERS seldom "crowd the bidding" unnecessarily. You will almost never see one jump more than a single level on the first round after the partner has opened the bidding. That leaves plenty of time and space for other calls, which may be very enlightening as to exact distribution and strength held. Such a signle jump guarantees enough total strength for the side to reach at least a game bid in something and removes the need for hurry. Minimum calls thereafter are safe, because you know a good partner will not drop you short of game.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North opened here with the very bad bid of 1-No Trump. South would have carried that to three, holding something like three spades to the K-J, three hearts to the K-Q, three diamonds to the A-10, and four little clubs; the opponents probably would start by running the club suit. A better opening would have been a heart with the plan of showing diamonds later.

South, however, far outdid North in bad bidding. After the original No Trump, he bid 4-Clubs. Why all the pushing and shoving? The right bid was 3-Clubs, then let nature take its course to game; or perhaps only 2-Clubs, biding your time to jump with that suit on the next round.

Over the 4-Clubs, North bid 4-Hearts, first right bid by the side. When South called 5-Clubs, North should have passed or bid 5-Diamonds, but didn't. He bid 5-Hearts. Then, when South went to 6-Clubs, North took it to 7-Clubs. "Woe is me!" sobbed the partners in unison after West led a small heart and set it two.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After South bid 1-Heart, North 1-Spade, South 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades, South 2-No Trumps and North 3-No Trumps, what should West lead?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I DO not think I shall ever know more mortal terror than I did when Dicky's voice called me from the stairs to the attic, where I was huddled waching the figure of the fugitive gunman outlined against the open trap door to the roof.

For I knew that the instant he should open the door to the attic, the man would shoot, and shoot to kill.

But I also knew that if I let Dicky know that the killer was up in the attic, nothing could keep him from coming up. And the faintest tremor in my voice would betray the truth to him.

I was quite proud of myself when, after the fraction of a second, I called back to him, being careful to make my voice appear to come from the spot where the man had heard it.

Tries to Stop Him.

"Hush, Dicky," I said. "I'm up here, and I don't want you to come up. I'll tell you later."

"What the devil," he demanded incredulously, "are you doing up there that you can't have me around? Look here!" his voice was suddenly anxious. "This is all poppycock. I'm coming up there this second, and Harry is right here at my heels, and so is a state trooper. I've got a yen to see what's eating you. All right, Harry and Mac, come along. Here's the place, I guess."

He started up the stairs, and feeling as if I could not keep myself from swooning, I rushed across the attic floor, forgetting the probability that the killer at the top of the stairs would take a shot at me. I was intent only upon keeping Dicky from traveling up those stairs, and getting within range of the gun.

But, astonishingly, there was no shot. Instead, the killer whirled and sprang through the trapdoor to the roof, slamming the door after him so that the reverberation could be heard through the house.

The next instant Dicky dashed through the attic door, meeting me head on, and caught me in his arms.

"Are you all right?" he demanded breathlessly. "And where did that fiend go?"

"I am perfectly all right," I answered, "and he went up to the roof and slammed the door."

Dicky started toward the roof on the jump, and I leaped after him.

"You're not going up there," I said fiercely.

"But I am," he retorted. "D'ye think you're the only fool in the family?"

I saw that, man-like, once his intense fear for me was removed, he was ready for caustic criticism.

He gave a short laugh as he tried to loosen my fingers clinging to his sleeve.

Just a Bluff.

"The bluff worked didn't it?" he demanded.

"You mean—" I gasped.

"Exactly," he said. "They were only figments of my imagination. When Katie told me that she was sure you had 'gone to roof after man's' I beat it up here, pronto. You didn't fool me. I knew you must have found the man, although why he didn't plug you when he had the chance, I don't know. But I'll quiz you about that later. Just now, the fact remains that that devil is beating it away as fast as he can, and that the guards outside are a bit off guard, if you'll excuse the pun. He has a better chance of getting away than he ever had, thanks to his craftiness in beating it to the attic instead of dashing to the outside at once. So don't delay the game any longer, old Dear."

Don't Let Tiny Wrinkles Get Toe-Hold

By MME. QUI VIVE

Watch the girl who does facial gymnastics and you'll come to the conclusion that the human countenance gets plenty of exercise. But you'll be wrong. Fibers aren't exercised, they're tensed. They're stretched tightly, over-strained, suffer from wear and tear. A frown digs in deeper than the skin. It puts twin ruts in the tissues, actually changes the character of the underlying muscles. Tissues become depleted. What the frowner needs is a more stable nervous system: more tolerance, an ever-present tranquility.

Talking has no bad effect upon the facial structure. Little muscular effort is required. But alas! many women talk all over; pull down the lip ends to express sorrow, life the eyebrows in surprise, draw the brows together when they are puzzled or vexed.

To battle with birthdays that seem to bank up rapidly after the thirty-age, every woman should mind her facial manners. If they are to be pleasing, her mind must be in a pleasant state. Many a beauty treatment begins in the mind. How you feel depends to a large extent upon how you think. How you look depends upon how you feel. Isn't it a fact, Geraldine?

There are simple exercises for facial muscles that will brush away the bad effects of grimaces.

Frowns are up and down pleats; lets iron them out thuswise:

Place the four fingertips of each hand up and down on the forehead just above the center of the eyebrows, fingers facing. Stretch flat and smooth in the middle section of the forehead by holding the fingers close to the bones. Lift the eyebrows. After twenty or thirty lifts do a quick little rotary movement over the frown area with a fingertip that has been dipped in a heavy massage cream.

Treatment for hollow cheeks: be catty and say "mai-ouw" and don't be any too quiet about it. (Better practice this beauty stunt when nobody else is home). With the first letter the lips do a pucker; the trumpeter's muscles, extending from cheek bone to lip ends, come into action. With the "a" and "i" sounds the mouth opens, smoothing the flesh at the sides of the mouth. Follow with quick, hammering massage movements.

If tiny crinkles are appearing around the mouth—and it is surprising how early they come, the little meanies—try a smiling and unsmiling exercise. Do a broad grin, showing the teeth; do a cute little pucker; back to the grin again. This exercise is recommended to make the lips red: it is an effective means of making less noticeable parenthesis lines extending from nostrils to lip ends.

After creaming the face use an ice cube. Do the refrigerating while the cream remains on. Tissues will keep firm, wrinkles won't get a toehold.

Preserved figs stuffed with white cream cheese and arranged on pineapple slices placed on lettuce and topped with salad dressing makes a very good salad.

To cook mushrooms for creaming or escalloping, remove thin pealing, cover with water and boil gently in covered pan five minutes.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 Miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 Miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't fiddle around with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are it's simple if you eat only what most people do: meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crisp crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Dry chamois rubbed over highly polished furniture, which has become cloudy, streaks the surface and does not remove the blur. Chamois wet in cold water and wrung dry will give a better polish.

When making mayonnaise, stir the beaten egg into cold vinegar and when it is boiled it will not curdle, as may be the case when eggs are added to hot vinegar.

When finely-chopped nuts are needed for cakes, salads or sandwiches run the nuts through a food-chopping machine.

Lime water will sweeten jars and jugs which soap and water fail to cleanse. It is admirable for cleaning milk and nursing bottles.

Grease in wash material should readily yield to soap and moderately hot water. Persistant traces will have to be bleached with javelle water.

Dressings For Salad Easily Made

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

WHEN IT'S hot and sultry even in the shade, a crisp salad, glorified by a tangy dressing, is just about the only thing the jaded appetite can manage. A perfect mayonnaise is a dependable first aid, although it isn't always an easy dish to manage. Time was when a perfect mayonnaise used to be proof of the cook's patience as well as her skill. But nowadays even a novice can plan confidently on perfect salad dressing for her first home-cooked menu. There is no more need for adding oil drop by drop with prayerful hope that the temperamental mixture won't curdle. Here's a new, quick recipe for mayonnaise made with sweetened condensed milk that magically curdle-proof. You just put everything in the bowl, stirring only enough to blend the ingredients, and the mixture thickens to perfect mayonnaise texture. It's economical, too, since one can of condensed milk will make two batches of mayonnaise.

Magic Mayonnaise.

Magic mayonnaise, a dressing worthy of its name, is made with two-thirds of a cup sweetened condensed milk, one-quarter cup vinegar or lemon juice, one-quarter cup salad oil or melted butter, one egg yolk, one-half teaspoon salt, few graine of cayenne and one teaspoon dry mustard. Place all in a mixing bowl. Beat with a rotary egg beater until mixture thickens. If a thicker consistency is desired, place in refrigerator to chill prior to serving. This recipe makes one and one-quarter cups of dressing.

Relish salad dressing is another grand dressing, ideal to dress up a simple salad and give it quite an air. To make it blend thoroughly two-thirds cup sweetened condensed milk, one-half cup vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt, three-quarters teaspoon dry mustard and one-half teaspoon paprika. Add Add one-half cup mixed olives, sweet pickle and pimentos, finely chopped, and beat until smooth. If thicker consistency is desired, place in refrigerator to chill before serving. It's nice with meat, fish or cooked vegetable salads. This recipe makes one and two-thirds cups.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, Aug. 5

THIS SHOULD be a particularly lively and enterprising day. There is prospect of promotion, preferment and honors from superiors or employers. But it is a propitious time for launching new undertakings. Care should be taken in signing papers as there is a menace of fraud or misrepresentation.

Those whose birthday it is may have a very enterprising year, with great ambition winning the favoritism of employers and those in authority. It might be advisable to be cautious in signing papers or contracts.

A child born on this day may have splendid initiative, should be successful on its own or in employment, and will be greatly favored by superiors. But it may be disposed to attain its objectives in the easiest way.

FRIDAY IS DEADLINE FOR ENTRIES IN NEWS-JOURNAL TENNIS TOURNEY

ONLY one more day remains after today for the filing of entries in the annual News-Journal Tennis tournament.

At 6 p. m. Friday, the deadline for entries will go into effect, and it will be THE deadline, too.

No entires for the city championship eliminations can possibly be accepted after Friday because pairings must be completed before Saturday to permit opening matches to be played over the week-end.

The News-Journal will conduct both a senior and junior tournaments for the first time this year.

Women will also be offered an opportunity to stage an elimination to determine a city feminine champion.

The women's tournament was dropped two years ago because of a lack of interest, but the sport has attracted more fair players this year than ever before in the history of the game in Mansfield, and it is believed that the time is ripe for them to decide their own queen of the courts.

However, the tournament for women will not be staged if the entry is not large enough to warrant an elimination.

In addition to the women's tournament and eliminations for junior boys and girls, up to 18 years of age, the events to be staged include senior men's singles and doubles and mixed doubles.

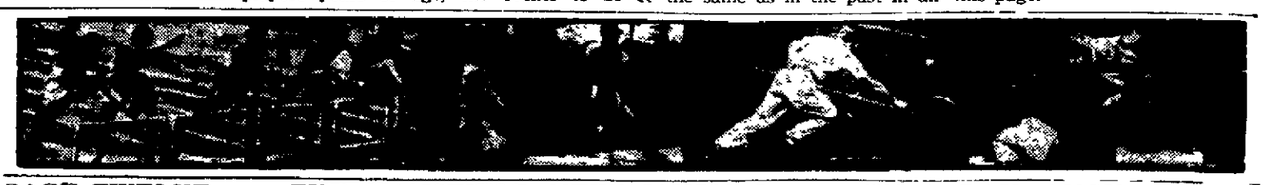
The mixed doubles event was added two years ago to replace the abandoned women's singles tournament.

Because of the added events, the tournament this year should attract the largest field ever to compete in a tennis meet in this city.

The tournament will be conducted the same as in the past in all classes except the Junior events. The junior tournaments will be staged with set schedules at Liberty park under the supervision of the newly organized Mansfield Tennis association.

The time and place of the other matches will be staged at the convenience of the participants, but within the scheduled periods.

An entry blank for the tournament may be found elsewhere on this page.



Feller Silences Red Sox

Stops Boston In Relief Role to Enable Tribe to Split With Visitors.

CLEVELAND—(U P)—Bob Feller, the Iowa schoolboy who has experienced considerable trouble in finishing his own ball games, today had stepped into the rare role of a relief pitcher and proved a success.

With the great Johnny Allen out of action because of a sore arm and Johnny Humphries, the rookie who was counted upon to be the Cleveland Indians' chief "fireman," unable to get anyone out, Feller went to the box in the seventh inning of the second game of yesterday's double-header here and silenced the big bats of the Boston Red Sox. His great work enabled the Tribe to take the nightcap 8 to 6 after losing the opener 4 to 3.

Earl Collapses.

Earl Whitehill, veteran southpaw, started the second game and went along in great style for six innings and then collapsed. Four singles and a walk sent him to the showers. Then Humphries came on and gave up two more hits and another walk. When his first pitch to the next batter was a ball, Feller came in.

The Iowa youngster set the next two men down in order and in the last two rounds gave up only one hit and walked one man.

It was only the second time this season Feller had been called upon to perform relief work. The other occasion was on the Tribe's second invasion of the east when he took a turn against the New York Yankees.

Cleveland hopped into the early lead in the second contest when it scored three times in the second inning once in the third, twice in the fourth and added single markers in the fifth and sixth. After that the Tribe had to fight bitterly to stave off the Red Sox rally.

Boston used five pitchers in the nightcap with the veteran Bill Harris recently obtained from Buffalo, being charged with the defeat.

A bad start cost Mel Harder and the Indians the victory in the opener. The veteran right-hander, who was after his 10th win of the season, was nicked for seven hits and four runs in the first four innings. After that he settled down and granted only two hits in the final five rounds but the damage had been done.

Cleveland made a courageous attempt to overcome the lead, by scoring once in the fifth and twice in the eighth, but Relief Pitcher Fritz Ostermueller nipped the late rally.

Perpetual Jinx.

Jack Wilson, a perpetual jinx to the Indians, gained credit for the Red Sox triumph. The big right-hander has 10 wins on his seasonal record and four of them have been at the expense of the Tribe.

In the final game of the series today Manager Oscar Vitt was forced to take another pitching gamble and he named the rookie Ken Jungles recently recalled from Milwaukee as his starting hurler. "Lefty" Grove was to work for the Red Sox.

The even break yesterday dropped the Indians to two full games back of the New York Yankees who won from Detroit.

WASHINGTON — Steve Mamakos [illegible] Washington outpointed Ivan Nedomatsky, [illegible] Baltimore (8)

Turn About Is Fair Play Tribe, Red Sox Split!

The opener was marked by the addition of another chapter to "The Sweatshirt Saga." In the third inning, when Harder came to bat, he protested vigorously to Umpire Hubbard that the right sleeve of Wilson's sweatshirt was too loose and confused. Afetr long argument and a lively discussion among the umpires, Wilson was ordered to cut off the sleeve at the elbow.

DeLuxe Cabs Engage Stars At Prospect

The powerful DeLuxe Cabs, whose only defeats this season were administered by the Beeber-Ross Beers, will attempt to regain their winning stride today when they collide on the softball field with an all-star team at Prospect park.

The all-star team will be composed of the oustanding players in the city.

The Cabs will engage the Beeber-Ross Beers in the third of their seven-game series at Johns park Friday, with Ben Fried hurling for the DeLuxe Cabs. He will probably be opposed by Jim Fullager.

Attempt Play Next Sunday

Five Games on Opening District Softball Card.

With an extra week of practice behind them, the nine teams entered in the district softball tournament at League park will play their opening round games at League park Sunday.

The games were originally scheduled for last Sunday, but they were postponed because of an all-day rain.

The schedule as announced for last Sunday will remain unchanged. The Hartman Electrics of Mansfield will meet the Faultless Rubbes of Ashland in the first game at noon, the Pitkin Provisions of Mt. Vernon face the DeLuxe Cabs of Mansfield at 1:30, the Mt. Vernon Timken Roller Bearings meet the winner of the first game at 2:30, the Marion Merchants engage the Siler Hatcheries of Ashland at 3:30 and the Mt Vernon Shellmar Products tackle the Beeber-Ross Beers of Mansfield.

The semi-finals will be played at the same field a week from Sunday, Donald D. Cram of the Y. M. C. A., tournament director, announced today.

Electric Club Breaks Tie For Loop Lead

Trim Nick's Place, 9 to 1, In Softball Loop.

The Dominion Electrics broke the tie for first place in the Y. M. C. A Commercial softball league yesterday when they defeated Nick's Place, 9 to 1, at Liberty park.

The Electrics scored eight of their nine runs in the last three innings to break up an interesting pitching duel between Shaffer of the Dominions and Gross of Nick's Place, which held a share of first place until yesterday's game.

Shaffer limited Nick's Place to four hits as his teammates collected nine off the delivery of Gross. Stein hit a home run for the Electrics.

The Hartman Electrics tallied four times in the first four innings to defeat the Page Dairys, 4 to 3, at Prospect park. The Sweet Gulf Oils won on a forfeit from the Tappan Stoves.

One hit robbed Dale McKinley of the All-State Freights of a no-hit game as he hurled his team to an 11 to 4 victory over the Miller Dairys at North park. Frank Moritz's single was the only hit obtained off his delivery. McKinley struck out 11 and did not issue a walk. Stash and Charles led the winners with three hits apiece.

Broadway Operators On Armstrong Scared

Out-of-Town Betting Commissioners Gobble Up Dough; Grimes Is Doing O. K. at Brooklyn.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Broadway operators who made Henry Armstrong a 3-1 choice to trim Lou Ambers have the jitters because of reports that such operators as Beverly Brown of St. Louis, Frankie Gatto of Kansas City and Babe Barron of Chicago are gobbling up all the 2½ to 1 dough they can get their hands on. . . . Now that Blondy Ryan is off the Jints he can resume sending those famous "They can't beat us" wires . . .which may do the Jints a lot more good than Blondy did sitting on the bench.

In passing out the orchids don't overlook Burleigh Grimes for the job he is doing in Brooklyn . . . The guy ain't had so much as a posey since the day he signed to manage the Dodgers . . . Al Weill, who manages Ambers, swears the Armstrong fight will do $150,000, but Mike Jacobs (who is only the promoter) probably would settle for half that—and pay a commission to boot.

Might Change A. A. Name to 'Come Back' League

MILWAUKEE—(AP)—They'd better change the name of the American association to the "Come Back league," Bill Zuber, late of the Cleveland Indians, and Cletus Elwood Poffenberger, who until recently was doing a disappearance act with the Detroit Tigers, added their names to the growing list of players let loose by major league clubs this season who have "found" themselves in the association.

Zuber made his association debut for Milwaukee last night and pitched seven-hit ball over a ten-inning route to beat Minneapolis, 7 to 6. Zuber singled with the bases full to drive in the winning run. Poffenberger pitched the second game of a doubleheader at Indianapolis and behind his seven-hit twirling Toledo won easily, 12 to 2.

Yanks Continue Successful Western Junket

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO — (AP) — Pacemakers who can win on the road usually blossom into pennant winners in October. That's why the major league races today pointed to the New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates as likely world series rivals two months hence.

The Yanks continued their highly successful western junket yesterday while the Pirates stepped up their eastern pace by sweeping a double-header from the Boston Bees. Whereas the Yanks and Pirates have proved their ability to win on the road, their two nearest rivals, the Indians and the Giants, slumped in their last intersectional road excursions.

Pittsburgh, showing no signs of cracking under the pressure of leading the National league parade, blasted the Bees 9-4 and 5-3 to increase its lead to 5½ games over the Giants. Al Todd, with four hits, led an 18-hit attack on Turner and Hutchinson to win the opener. Arky Vaughan and Paul Waner, with a pair of hits each, paced the Pirates' 10-hit attack in the nightcap. Cy Blanton and Joe Bowman were the winning pitchers.

The New York Giants turned loose a home run barrage on the Chicago Cubs to win, 8-3. Mel Ott his No. 24 and Mancuso, Bartell and Seeds also hit round trippers.

Cincinnati moved into a third place tie with the Cubs by trimming the Phillies, 6-3, in 10 innings.

The St. Louis Cardinals nosed out Brooklyn 3-2 in a 10-inning night game.

Rookie Joe Gordon's 14th homer climaxed a three-run rally in the 11th, that gave the Yanks a 10-7 victory over Detroit.

The Boston Red Sox divided a pair with Cleveland, winning the opener 4-3, and then dropping the nightcap to the Indians, 8-6.

The Philadelphia Athletics walloped the Chicago White Sox twice, 14-2, and 13-5. Bob Johnson hit homers No. 19 and 20 in the first game.

Harlond Clift's homer put the clincher on the St. Louis Browns' 5-3 victory over Washington. Buck Newsom let his ex-teammates down with six hits.

Says National Needs 'Plenty'

Rickey Prescribes Tonic For Major Circuit.

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Branch Rickey, guiding spirit of the St. Louis Cardinals, prescribed a tonic today for the National League which included "more unity and coherence and a concerted dislike" for the rival American League.

To the question "What's wrong with the National League?" the vice president of the Cardinals and head of its vast minor league empire, replied: "Plenty."

He sized it up this way: "For 50 years the National League clubs have concentrated attention on beating each other. The American League and the world's series have been regarded as only incidents.

"Our clubs have thought only in terms of their own league and winning the pennant. The result was inevitable. After the pennant race, the letdown set in. Instead of bristling with fighting spirit and adopting an attitude of 'now to clean up on those American league upstarts,' our winning team much of the time has figuratively yawned while remembering it had a world's series engagement coming up."

Rickey pointed out the American League came into being as "an opposition league." Its attitude, he said, "always has been one of tremendous partisanship against the National League.

"The late Ban Johnson, while president, encouraged this feeing against the National League. He went out of his way to foster it. I recall several instances while managing the St. Louis Browns. Any time my club defeated the Cardinals or some other National League team, along would come telegraphic congratulations from Johnson."

THE story of Frank Vaselle crashing Hollywood is one that happens once in a lifetime, but vastly interesting when it does happen outside the movies. Three years ago Vaselle lived in Brooklyn and every day people told the boy that he looked exactly like James Cagney, movie star. Movie-struck, young Vaselle started for Hollywood, hoping to cash in on the resemblance. But all his efforts to see the star or studio officials came to naught. Finally he took a job as bell hop in a Las Vegas hotel. Then he read in a paper that the studio was looking for a youngster to play Cagney as a boy in "Angels With Dirty Faces" Once more he hitch-hiked to Hollywood and once again he couldn't get near the star or the studio. Discouraged, he started back for Las Vegas. He was trying to thumb a ride at the corner of Eighth and San Pedro streets in Los Angeles, when a Warner talent scout came along, saw the boy and noted his striking resemblance to Cagney. Now he's playing in "Angles With Dirty Faces," and is signed to a seven-year contract. But it happens only once in a lifetime.

Air Thriller at Madison.

"Sky Giant," a thriller among aviation pictures, is booked at the Madison for Friday and Saturday The film has Richard Dix and Chester Morris, flying buddies, at sword's point over the heart and hand of Joan Fontaine. A round-the-world-flight, by way of Alaska and Siberia, is the big episode When the two men who are enemies because of a girl set out on the first leg of the trip, one man is engaged to her, but the other one marries her The drama of human emotions comes to a climax when the sky giant which they are piloting crashes in the snow wastes of Alaska, with their radio ruined and 300 miles between them and human habitation Exciting air shots are interwoven in the romance Harry Carey and Paul Guilfoyle are in the supporting cast.

Millionaire Hobo.

A millionaire who turns hobo because he's sick of those who hang around him for his money and his favors, meets the daughter of a circus clown on his stage adventures and thereby hangs the tale of "I'll Give A Million," which brings Warner Baxter and pretty Marjorie Weaver to the Ohio for the last half of the week. Such favorites as Jean Hersholt and Peter Lorre appear in character roles, while Lynn Bari and J Edward Bromberg are prominently cast. A millionaire turning hobo isn't so far fetched as it seems for it has happened in real life on several occasions.

A Western Sleuth.

Smith Ballew, Western star who appeared here in person not long ago, is star of "Panamint's Bad Man" opening at the Majestic today. Evelyn Daw and Noah Beery, jr., support the action hero in this yarn of a gun-toting, hard riding sleuth of the Old West who sets out to stop the raids on the Wells-Fargo express in which silver ingots were being hi-jacked. After solving a part of the problem by having the silver melted into bars too heavy to be hi-jacked by men on horseback, Ballew, sets out to round up the guilty gang. A reissue of "David Copperfield," with a long list of stars, is the second feature.

Old Drama Revived.

A modern film and one of a vintage of some years ago are combined on the Ritz program for Friday and Saturday. Almost an old timer is "Billy The Kid," in which John Mack Brown played the famous young outlaw of the Old West in the 1870 era. He was the leader of the famous—or infamous McSween gang in Lincoln county, New Mexico. Kay Johnson plays opposite Brown in what has always been regarded as the greatest role he ever played in pictures. Wallace Beery, Karl Dane, who died several years ago, Roscoe Ates and others are in the cast. The modern film drama is Peter Lorre in "Mr. Moto's Gamble," an intriguing mystery yarn.

DETROIT STARTS MOVE TO BID FOR OLYMPICS

DETROIT — (AP) — Combined forces of sportsmen, civic promotional groups and business interests got behind a move today to push Detroit in on the ground floor among bidders for Olympic games.

The motor capital, ready and willing to go to bat against the British empire and Premier Mussolini in competition for the games, formally entered its invitation to the 1944 Olympiad, or 1948 as second choice.

BRIGHTER HUE FAILS TO LURE STOCK TRADERS

Business Improvement, Lessening of European Tension Serve as Market Props.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selected stocks took on a faint rallying hue in today's market but the somewhat brighter color failed to attract buyers in any great numbers.

Continuance of fairly good business developments and an apparent lessening of European tension over the recent gold rush and sinking British pound were seen as market props. Reports a midwestern steel company had cut wages through an agreement with workers was a buoying market influence. Bonds, commodities and foreign securities markets were narrow.

Stocks inclined to push upward most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Chesapeake & Ohio and American Can.

Gold mining stocks took a rest as the price of the yellow metal in London was unchanged and sterling and the French franc showed a disposition to recovery terms of the dollar.

Many traders continued to hug neutral territory on the theory the market still was more or less of a day-to-day affair and had yet to give a definite signal that it was ready to break out of the restricted area in which it has been lingering since the peak of the midsummer "baby boom" on July 25.

ASSERTS EMPIRE HAS CUT WAGES

fluence on steel wages throughout the industry generally, but added that "leading authorities" had stated there would be no effect on wages of larger steel companies as a result of Empire's reductions.

The story concluded with the statement "relations between Empire and the Amalgamated lodge in the past have been the best in the entire steel industry."

Empire renewed its contract with Amalgamated in March. The contract, governing wages and working conditions, is for a period of a year.

Joins In Denial.

Joining in the denials of a wage cut was B. Frank Bennet, president of the Amalgamated.

He said, according to a Pittsburgh dispatch of the Associated Press, that there was "no truth to the report" that Empire had obtained a wage cut agreement.

He explained that Amalgamated had negotiated the present wage contract with Empire and that a reduction could not have been made without his knowledge.

He attributed the reports to companies "trying to bring pressure to indent the wage scale."

Unofficial reports in Mansfield were to the effect that the reduction agreement had been reached about three weeks ago, but both company and union officials persistently denied them.

Some employes, however, have admitted that they were working for a reduced wage, although they were reluctant to talk about the situation.

cury had climbed to 85. At 89 at noon, it was expected to reach the 90-mark by mid-afternoon.

New York's metropolitan area entered its eleventh consecutive day of intense heat, with a prediction of a high of 92 and the humidity readings going up.

Although rain swept the Chicago area, following a season record of 92 Tuesday and only one degree less the following day, when two died of heat, a temperature of 90 was forecast again today.

England, which because of humidity is pretty uncomfortable with high temperatures, rounded out six days of heat in the eighties with one of the heaviest rainstorms in recent years along its west coast. Central Europe, too, was hot.

RAIDERS FIND STILL OPERATING ON EDGE OF CITY

Sheriff, 2 Federal Inspectors Arrest Man, Confiscate 21 Barrels of Mash.

Sheriff E. P. Long and two federal liquor investigators yesterday afternoon confiscated a 50-gallon still in the basement of a home on Spring avenue at the northern edge of the city and arrested Ermie Popa, 45, the operator.

Popa, who was operating the still when officers closed in on him, was held in the county jail today, and will be taken to Akron for a hearing before a federal court, Sheriff Long said. He was held on a charge of illegal manufacture of liquor.

Confiscate Liquor, Sugar.

Confiscated with the still were 21 50-gallon barrels of mash, 48 gallons of liquor and 25 bags of sugar.

Long said federal investigators who have been in this vicinity for the past two weeks, traced the location of the still through the sale of quantities of sugar and yeast.

The still, the sheriff added, was the largest that has been confiscated here since prohibition days.

The equipment was destroyed by the officers and the liquor and mash was poured out, Long said. The sugar was turned over to the county home.

CHURCH PICNICS AT HEISE PARK

Three Outings Staged This Week By Young People; Spelling Bee Staged.

GALION—A number of church picnics were held this week at Heise park.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening the men's and young men's classes of the First Reformed church held a picnic at the park. Features of the day included a ball game between the teams captained by Dave Bauer and Delnore Goldsmith; a tug of war between Calvin Tracht and Herman Eichhorn as captains of teams; horseshoe pitching in charge of Glenn Gwinner and Lester Eichler; various races and contests. After the supper which was served at 7 o'clock, there was an old fashioned spelling bee with Curtis Tracht as teacher. The picnic committee included Art Manzer, Oscar Hocker, Jesse Davis, Robert Heiser and Clarence Decker.

A Sunday school picnic was held Tuesday at the park by the Market Street Methodist church. Nearly 60 members were present, and arrangements were in charge of the following chairmen: Eugene Tischer, John Herr, Mrs. Eugene Tischer, Byron Lemley, Mrs. Jesse Sharrock and Dorothy Dunning.

There were about 60 present for the annual picnic of the Sunday school of the Church of Christ held at the park Tuesday evening. The picnic also honored the Jewel class taught by Ruth Marie Henry, and the Wonder Workers' class of which Iliene Arndt is teacher. These classes were winners in a recent attendance contest. The dinner committee was composed of Mrs. W. G. Kiddey, Mrs. Burgess Hathaway and Maybelle Bennett.

SEWER PROJECT HELD UP UNTIL COSTS ARE SET

Ashland Solons Seek to Fix Service Charges; Road Job Due to Start Monday.

ASHLAND—Passage of the proposed sewage project here has been delayed by the council pending the determination of rates for service.

The delay by council means that before city council will pass the ordinance providing for the $300,000 sewage disposal plant, E. D. Barstow, consulting engineer and E. M. Kerr, city engineer will have to determine the rates for the service of the proposed plant.

If the council passes the measure, it will mean that the city will issue $165,000 in bonds as its share in the project, with the remainder being sought in a PWA grant.

With this much money involved, it was the contention of council that before the plan could be adopted, a means of determining the cost to each user would have to be worked out.

START ROAD JOB

ASHLAND—With approval already secured for the Ashland county-wide WPA road program, work on the project will probably start Monday, it was announced here by L. G. Shenberger, county engineer.

The engineer, notified by telegram that the project had been given approval, stated that the WPA grant, although it may not mean any additional employment in the county, would probably absorb 110 certified WPA workers, without employment.

PRIMARY GAINS MORE INTEREST

Eight Seek Nomination for Commissioner in Heated Morrow Races.

MT GILEAD—A quickened interest in the coming primary has been in evidence during the past week due possibly to the greatly increased activity of candidates here.

Local interest appears to be concentrated almost exclusively in the contests for the Democratic and Republican nominations for county commissioner where eight are battling for party nominations. There is only one vacancy. Elton Goff and Charles Beck of Congress township, J. E. Shults of Lincoln township, Burson Ulrey of Harmony township, and Fred Ford of Troy are the five Democratic candidates while the Republican race is between George Thomas of Edison, Lockworth James of Cardington and Stanley Zeger of Congress township.

Second in interest is the battle for party nominations for state representative. C. H. Patzer, defeated Democratic candidate for the office two years ago, is opposed for nomination by O. E Smith, Mt. Gilead insurance salesman, and J. G. Mills of Cardington, Republican, now serving his second term in the assembly, is opposed for renomination by John Hindman, Franklin township.

Two county officials are unopposed for the Republican nomination and will apparently face no opposition in November. They are P. H. Wieland common pleas judge, and Harold Taylor, auditor Both are serving first terms.

BOY, 4 AND 2, WANDER FAR BUT IT ALL COMES OUT RIGHT

GALION—Many were the experiences of David, 4, and Jimmy, 2, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Decker of Gill avenue, who wandered far during an hour and a half after lunch Wednesday. Their mother, and her sister, Mrs. Gerald Bosler, searched most of the city streets, and the police also aided in the hunt.

The boys left home at 1 p. m. and were found at 2 30 They had traveled to the swimming pool at Heise park in the west part of town, and then followed the creek through the city, arriving later at the east corporation line on Harding way east.

Somewhere along their route, which included many city blocks, they acquired ice cream cones without funds. Arriving at the Big Four station with the cones melting rapidly, a dining car porter helped them into the car and gave them dishes so they could enjoy the remainder of their lunch. This part of their travels was learned when David explained to his mother that a "black man with a white coat had given him a dish for his ice cream cone," and that he and his brother had been assisted on the train by a policeman (his description of a conductor or trainman in uniform). It was learned later that a Big Four dining car had been on a side-track at the station during the afternoon.

The boys were found in the east section of town by someone who realized their predicament. They were taken to the grocery store operated by Service Director Jay F. Nichols, and Mrs. Nichols notified police. Mrs. Decker was then told of the whereabouts of her children. By this time the boys had to be given candy suckers to stop them from crying for their home and parents.

DAY LASHES AT 'FORTUNE' SPENT IN TAFT DRIVE

Charges Half Million Used to Win Nomination; Senate Insists on Report.

Less than 12 hours after Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, Republican candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination, addressed a Republican rally in Mansfield, his opponent, Judge Arthur H. Day, Cleveland, today fired a new blast against Taft in a statement from Columbus.

Accusing the Taft family of spending half a million dolars to place a Taft in the U. S. senate," Judge Day asserted that "the U S. senate might find it necessary to deny a seat to Taft if he should be nominated and elected, "because the Cincinnatian refuses to submit a statement of his campaign contributions.

Insists on Report.

Meanwhile, Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, chairman of the senate campaign funds committee, gave Taft until 3:30 p. m. today to supply the information regarding his campaign expenses, dispatches from Washington said today.

"I do not understand that this question applies to legally constituted campaign committees under the Ohio law," Taft asserted.

"Mr. Taft apparently challenges the authority of the committee," Senator Sheppard said, "and we probably will send an investigator to help him make the return if he does not reply."

Taft had listed expenditures of $15,684, but did not list contributors. He indicated funds were received by a special committee.

In his attack on Taft, Judge Day charged that "the individual most responsible for the sales tax in Ohio is Mr. Taft."

Tracing the activities of Taft as a member of the state senate, Judge Day asserted that the Cincinnatian worked for the sales tax law to protect the Taft estate from heavier taxation.

"One of the most vigorous campaigners against the 10-mill limitation law was Taft, who feared that a state income tax or increased rates on intangibles might result from its enactment and hit the Taft fortune," Judge Day said.

ALL-COMMUNITY PICNIC STAGED

Ashland Closes Up Shop for Gala Outing at Brookside; Thousands Participate.

ASHLAND — Local merchants and industrialists called a halt to their business activities here, and thousands jammed the popular Brookside park in the afternoon Wednesday for the first all-community picnic to be held here under the sponsorship of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce.

The park, which annually attracts close to 300,000 people, was taxed to capacity all afternoon and evening as thousands participated in the various contests and exhibits included on the program.

After the preliminaries of the afternoon, the program swung into full session with an all-star soft ball game between the "National" and the "American" associations at 6 p. m.

Following was the round robin horse shoe pitching tournament, and next came the free band concert played by a band of close to 100 pieces under the direction of L. E. Pete.

At 9 p. m., the program ended with a gigantic fireworks exhibition.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

I WALKED up through the woods to look for blackberries, but found them greener there than along the borders of the field. Between the tops of beech, sugar and poplar trees that woodsmen cut last winter, I came upon a top of red or slippery, elm, with a branch twelve or fifteen feet above the ground that leaned far out beyond the others. From where it joined the trunk until it reached the highest point, the slope was gradual.

Slippery elms are rare in this section, and I looked at it carefully. The mode of branching, the rough scaly bark, and the white, edible strip beneath that I found along the middle of the stump, proved I was right.

Upon the high branch, I saw a knot that trouble me. I felt it did not belong to the tree, but it had so much the color of the bark, and fit so closely on the limb, that the casual eye would have passed it by

The wind blew hard just then, and parted a streak of soft dark gray fur. Then the outline of a halfgrown woodchuck became clearer. He was sleeping there in the warm sunshine, unmindful of my approach. His head was close down to the bark, the little ears relaxed. Not the slightest motion could I see, except the movement of the flanks, in sound and dreamless slumber.

I found a little chip and threw it lightly at the sleeping baby. He drowsily awoke, blinked, yawned, stretched himself and looked about him, half awake He had not yet discovered that I was foreign to his forest home I wanted to see what would happen when he saw me, so I threw a heavy twig which landed on his head. Startled, he raised up on his haunches and caught sight of me, at the place where he had started up the branch

He looked down for a safe landing in the brush, hesitated a fraction of a second, then sprang, lit on all fours, and scampered for his burrow.

CHAPTER 7.

Noel, obediently finished her dinner She hadn't intended doing anything else. Food was food.

When she left the cafe, she was surprised to find Ruth Chester outside. "I want to speak to you, Miss Shayne," she said moving up to Noel

"So you know my name?" Noel exclaimed puzzled.

"Oh, I read the society columns and sometimes look at the pictures" Ruth shrugged.

They walked on then slowly toward Main

"I just want to tell you" Ruth Chester began coolly, "that your little scheme won't work"

Noel started at her "What do you mean?"

"Your scheme to be close to Julian Paige." Ruth Chester went on "It's obvious and perfectly silly, if you're asking me"

"I'm not asking you and I'm not interested in your opinion," Noel retorted A flame of anger rushed to Ruth Chester's olive cheeks She looked at Noel with blazing dark eyes "I'll tell you this anyway," she went on, restraining her anger with a great effort. "Julian doesn't care a rap about your money. He's not in love with you And even if he were, he'd never marry you There's a darn good reason why—" her voice broke with anger then and she turned and walked away

NOEL HAD never heard so much restrained fury as there had been in Ruth Chester's voice when the nurse had spoken her mind She had said that Noel would never marry Julian Paige for "a darn good reason" Noel pondered over that a long time. She couldn't imagine what Ruth Chester had meant.

As Noel walked to her job at the Peacock that night, she could hardly get her mind off of Ruth Chester and how coldly furious she had been From the first moment she had seen her, Noel had thought Ruth Chester was madly in love with Julian Now she had given herself away, even though Julian might be thoroughly unconscious of it.

Also Ruth Chester was even prettier than Noel had realized And she had the advantage of working in the clinic next to Julian's office, and could run in and see him all during the day when she was not busy She had every chance in the world to win Julian's love, Noel had to admit to herself. And Julian admired Ruth very much He was always saying something complimentary about her.

There wasn't any use trying not to see it, Noel told herself unhappily Ruth Chester was a dangerous rival, and a very determined one.

But Noel finally managed to dismiss her from her mind She had to put all her thoughts on her work. It wasn't going to be easy even then, though Laurie had given Noel a number of pointers on what to do, and what not to do. So Noel wasn't going to work in ignorance on her first evening.

As soon as she entered the Peacock, she went to the dressing room and slipped into the gold tulle evening dress and the high-heeled gold sandals, which she had brought with her in a pasteboard box

There ware many girls in these, putting on makeup, and adding last minute touches to their hair Most of them spoke to her, recognized her as a new girl and seemed friendly enough.

Noel found dancing at the Peacock wasn't nearly so unpleasant as she had feared it would be. All the men with whom she danced treated her with respect Noel hadn't been sure they would. She had been afraid because she was paid to dance with them, and anybody could ask her for a dance, that some of them might feel they could take liberties, might even insist on going home with her

But nothing like that happened Noel learned that it was against Luigi's rules for the girls to accept the patrons of the Peacock as escorts home. "Just one of Luigi's crazy ideas," one of the girls told her. But it gave Noel a sense of relief

At 1 15 the Peacock closed Noel was given her $2, and left to her own resources.

Quite fortunately for her, the Peacock was only about five blocks from the rooming house on Court street So she walked the short distance alone

Laurie was there in the lumpy bed sleeping soundly Noel crawled in beside her, and suddenly, it seemed as if her whole body was one intense ache Once she was relaxed, she found even the slightest movement meant agony

It seemed to Noel that she had been asleep only about 10 minutes when Laurie awakened her the next morning But it was 8:30.

Laurie was up, looking rested and refreshed "I hated to call you," she said, "but we've got to be up and doing, you know Besides, I've got you some hot coffee."

"Coffee! Where on earth—?" Noel sat up in bed To her surprise, she found the pain was all gone, even though she had felt when Laurie awakened her that nothing on earth could ever induce her to move again.

Then Laurie was pouring the coffee in a 10-cent store cup which was badly chipped. Once Noel would have turned away in loathing from such a cup, but the aroma of the coffee was irresistible. She held out her hands eagerly.

Laurie, rummaging around in the cabinet of the old-fashioned washstand, found a saucer to go with the cup, even though it didn't match. Then she placed the cup and saucer on the upended top of a small drawer she had withdrawn from the washstand just above the cabinet part "Modom, here is your tray," she said playfully "Shall I draw your bawth now?"

Noel didn't look at her for a moment. "How on earth did you manage such a miracle?" she asked at last.

Laurie explained that she had bought the coffee with some of the money Noel had given her, saying that it was lots cheaper to have a bit of breakfast in their room than to go out to a cafe.

"Yes, I suppose so," Noel agreed thoughtfully. Then she said, "You'll have to teach me to—make coffee."

Laurie's eyes grew wide. "You mean you don't know how?"

"Not how to—to make it as you do," Noel evaded.

Then Laurie said: "Feel stiffish this morning?"

"I was just about dead until you gave me the coffee. But I'm feeling grand now" Just to prove it Noel sprang up and did a little dance step around the room in her pajamas, the cup and saucer still in her hand

"Be careful of the china," Laurie giggled. "It might get chipped

"That would be too—too awful, Noel laughed

Then Laurie wanted to know how things had gone at the Peacock. "Better than I hoped," Noel told her, beginning to brush her loose golden curls and wondering how soon she'd be able to manage a bath in the bathroom down the hall. Yesterday she had made four trips with soap and towel before she had found it unoccupied. When she had a chance to get in at last she found it most uninviting So much enamel had peeled off the tub, it looked as if it had a bad case of scrofula

But Laurie, it appeared had already managed a bath "You have to get there early," she said in answer to Noel's question as to when it would be best to try for a bath "Any time around 8 o'clock you'll get the busy signal"

Then she explained that in an emergency you could get a bath of sorts in the bowl. Noel looked at it in superb distaste

But Laurie was still thinking about Luigi's "So everything passed off okay, did it?

Noel nodded "Nobody tried to get the least bit fresh But I had to dance every dance with a lot of cut-ins Guess that was why I was so tired"

"If the men are not respectful, Luigi has them thrown out on their ears," Laurie said. "That's the one nice thing about the place It isn't the men you have to dance with that you have to—" but she didn't finish

Noel was digging in her purse "Here's your half of last night's handsome proceeds"

"Listen, you take this money," Noel thrust it into her unwilling hands Then she said, "You're going to stay with me, aren't you, even when you get a job?"

"Do you want me to?" Laurie asked.

"Yes, I do. I want you very much. You see, I like you," Noel said earnestly.

So that was all settled.

RAIDERS FIND STILL OPERATING ON EDGE OF CITY

Sheriff, 2 Federal Inspectors Arrest Man, Confiscate 21 Barrels of Mash.

Sheriff E. P. Long and two federal liquor investigators yesterday afternoon confiscated a 50-gallon still in the basement of a home on Spring avenue at the northern edge of the city and arrested Ermie Popa, 45, the operator.

Popa, who was operating the still when officers closed in on him, was held in the county jail today, and will be taken to Akron for a hearing before a federal court, Sheriff Long said. He was held on a charge of illegal manufacture of liquor.

Confiscate Liquor, Sugar.

Confiscated with the still were 21 50-gallon barrels of mash, 48 gallons of liquor and 25 bags of sugar.

Long said federal investigators who have been in this vicinity for the past two weeks, traced the location of the still through the sale of quantities of sugar and yeast.

The still, the sheriff added, was the largest that has been confiscated here since prohibition days.

The equipment was destroyed by the officers and the liquor and mash was poured out, Long said. The sugar was turned over to the county home.

CHURCH PICNICS AT HEISE PARK

Three Outings Staged This Week By Young People; Spelling Bee Staged.

GALION—A number of church picnics were held this week at Heise park.

On Wednesday afternoon and evening the men's and young men's classes of the First Reformed church held a picnic at the park. Features of the day included a ball game between the teams captained by Dave Bauer and Delnore Goldsmith; a tug of war between Calvin Tracht and Herman Eichhorn as captains of teams; horseshoe pitching in charge of Glenn Gwinner and Lester Eichler; various races and contests. After the supper which was served at 7 o'clock, there was an old fashioned spelling bee with Curtis Tracht as teacher. The picnic committee included Art Manzer, Oscar Hocker, Jesse Davis, Robert Heiser and Clarence Decker.

A Sunday school picnic was held Tuesday at the park by the Market Street Methodist church. Nearly 60 members were present, and arrangements were in charge of the following chairmen: Eugene Tischer, John Herr, Mrs. Eugene Tischer, Byron Lemley, Mrs. Jesse Sharrock and Dorothy Dunning.

There were about 60 present for the annual picnic of the Sunday school of the Church of Christ held at the park Tuesday evening. The picnic also honored the Jewel class taught by Ruth Marie Henry, and the Wonder Workers' class of which Iliene Arndt is teacher. These classes were winners in a recent attendance contest. The dinner committee was composed of Mrs. W. G. Kiddey, Mrs. Burgess Hathaway and Maybelle Bennett.

SEWER PROJECT HELD UP UNTIL COSTS ARE SET

Ashland Solons Seek to Fix Service Charges; Road Job Due to Start Monday.

ASHLAND—Passage of the proposed sewage project here has been delayed by the council pending the determination of rates for service.

The delay by council means that before city council will pass the ordinance providing for the $300,000 sewage disposal plant, E. D. Barstow, consulting engineer and E. M. Kerr, city engineer will have to determine the rates for the service of the proposed plant.

If the council passes the measure, it will mean that the city will issue $165,000 in bonds as its share in the project, with the remainder being sought in a PWA grant.

With this much money involved, it was the contention of council that before the plan could be adopted, a means of determining the cost to each user would have to be worked out.

START ROAD JOB

ASHLAND—With approval already secured for the Ashland county-wide WPA road program, work on the project will probably start Monday, it was announced here by L. G. Shenberger, county engineer.

The engineer, notified by telegram that the project had been given approval, stated that the WPA grant, although it may not mean any additional employment in the county, would probably absorb 110 certified WPA workers, without employment.

PRIMARY GAINS MORE INTEREST

Eight Seek Nomination for Commissioner in Heated Morrow Races.

MT. GILEAD—A quickened interest in the coming primary has been in evidence during the past week due possibly to the greatly increased activity of candidates here.

Local interest appears to be concentrated almost exclusively in the contests for the Democratic and Republican nominations for county commissioner where eight are battling for party nominations. There is only one vacancy. Elton Goff and Charles Beck of Congress township, J. E. Shults of Lincoln township, Burson Ulrey of Harmony township, and Fred Ford of Troy are the five Democratic candidates while the Republican race is between George Thomas of Edison, Lockworth James of Cardington and Stanley Zeger of Congress township.

Second in interest is the battle for party nominations for state representative. C. H. Patzer, defeated Democratic candidate for the office two years ago, is opposed for nomination by O. E. Smith, Mt. Gilead insurance salesman, and J. G. Mills of Cardington, Republican, now serving his second term in the assembly, is opposed for renomination by John Hindman, Franklin township.

Two county officials are unopposed for the Republican nomination and will apparently face no opposition in November. They are P. H. Wieland, common pleas judge, and Harold Taylor, auditor. Both are serving first terms.

BOY, 4 AND 2, WANDER FAR BUT IT ALL COMES OUT RIGHT

GALION—Many were the experiences of David, 4, and Jimmy, 2, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Decker of Gill avenue, who wandered far during an hour and a half after lunch Wednesday. Their mother, and her sister, Mrs. Gerald Bosler, searched most of the city streets, and the police also aided in the hunt.

The boys left home at 1 p. m. and were found at 2:30. They had traveled to the swimming pool at Heise park in the west part of town, and then followed the creek through the city, arriving later at the east corporation line on Harding way east.

Somewhere along their route, which included many city blocks, they acquired ice cream cones without funds. Arriving at the Big Four station with the cones melting rapidly, a dining car porter helped them into the car and gave them dishes so they could enjoy the remainder of their lunch. This part of their travels was learned when David explained to his mother that a "black man with a white coat had given him a dish for his ice cream cone," and that he and his brother had been assisted on the train by a policeman (his description of a conductor or trainman in uniform). It was learned later that a Big Four dining car had been on a side-track at the station during the afternoon.

The boys were found in the east section of town by someone who realized their predicament. They were taken to the grocery store operated by Service Director Jay F. Nichols, and Mrs. Nichols notified police. Mrs. Decker was then told of the whereabouts of her children. By this time the boys had to be given candy suckers to stop them from crying for their home and parents.

DAY LASHES AT 'FORTUNE' SPENT IN TAFT DRIVE

Charges Half Million Used to Win Nomination; Senate Insists on Report.

Less than 12 hours after Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, Republican candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination, addressed a Republican rally in Mansfield, his opponent, Judge Arthur H. Day, Cleveland, today fired a new blast against Taft in a statement from Columbus.

Accusing the Taft family of spending half a million dolars to place a Taft in the U. S. senate," Judge Day asserted that "the U. S. senate might find it necessary to deny a seat to Taft if he should be nominated and elected, "because the Cincinnatian refuses to submit a statement of his campaign contributions.

Insists on Report.

Meanwhile, Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, chairman of the senate campaign funds committee, gave Taft until 3:30 p. m. today to supply the information regarding his campaign expenses, dispatches from Washington said today.

"I do not understand that this question applies to legally constituted campaign committees under the Ohio law," Taft asserted.

"Mr. Taft apparently challenges the authority of the committee," Senator Sheppard said, "and we probably will send an investigator to help him make the return if he does not reply."

Taft had listed expenditures of $15,684, but did not list contributors. He indicated funds were received by a special committee.

In his attack on Taft, Judge Day charged that "the individual most responsible for the sales tax in Ohio is Mr. Taft."

Tracing the activities of Taft as a member of the state senate, Judge Day asserted that the Cincinnatian worked for the sales tax law to protect the Taft estate from heavier taxation.

"One of the most vigorous campaigners against the 10-mill limitation law was Taft, who feared that a state income tax or increased rates on intangibles might result from its enactment and hit the Taft fortune," Judge Day said.

ALL-COMMUNITY PICNIC STAGED

Ashland Closes Up Shop for Gala Outing at Brookside; Thousands Participate.

ASHLAND — Local merchants and industrialists called a halt to their business activities here, and thousands jammed the popular Brookside park in the afternoon Wednesday for the first all-community picnic to be held here under the sponsorship of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce.

The park, which annually attracts close to 300,000 people, was taxed to capacity all afternoon and evening as thousands participated in the various contests and exhibits included on the program.

After the preliminaries of the afternoon, the program swung into full session with an all-star soft ball game between the "National" and the "American" associations at 6 p. m.

Following was the round robin horse shoe pitching tournament, and next came the free band concert played by a band of close to 100 pieces under the direction of L. E. Pete.

At 9 p. m., the program ended with a gigantic fireworks exhibition.

RELIEF DROPS TO YEAR'S LOW DURING JULY

$16,980 Spent in City and Township; 1,015 Families, 261 Singles on Rolls.

Relief costs totalled $16,980 in Mansfield and Madison township during July and dropped to a new low for the year when 1,051 families and 261 single persons were provided with food, clothing and fuel, the monthly report of Relief Director Earl A. Nist showed today.

The amount spent for relief purposes was $1,081 less than the June expenditures which totaled $18,061. Salaries of case workers and other administrative costs totalled $1,141.

Approximately three-fourths of the total expenditures or $11,834 provided assistance for 972 cases in Mansfield while the township spent $3,154 for its 340 cases.

Township Costs Down $1,000.

This was approximately $267 less than was spent by the city during June while Madison township costs dropped $1,000. During July 972 cases obtained relief from the city.

An increase in applications for relief was shown in both Mansfield and Madison township with 300 persons applying during July as compared with 290 in June. Of this number 112 became active cases.

Due to the opening of the county bridge and road project, WPA certification for work increased from 192 in June to 232 last month.

During the past month the administration distributed 133,000 pounds of surplus commodities from the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation. These included 46,383 pounds of flour, 25,038 pounds of oranges, 34,225 pounds of potatoes, 10,786 cans of grapefruit juice, 4,650 pounds of beans, 3,650 pounds of dry skim milk, 3,476 pounds of prunes and 4,950 pounds of rice.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

I WALKED up through the woods to look for blackberries, but found them greener there than along the borders of the field. Between the tops of beech, sugar and poplar trees that woodsmen cut last winter, I came upon a top of red, or slippery, elm, with a branch twelve or fifteen feet above the ground that leaned far out beyond the others. From where it joined the trunk until it reached the highest point, the slope was gradual.

Slippery elms are rare in this section, and I looked at it carefully. The mode of branching, the rough scaly bark, and the white, edible strip beneath that I found along the middle of the stump, proved I was right.

Upon the high branch, I saw a knot that trouble me. I felt it did not belong to the tree, but it had so much the color of the bark, and fit so closely on the limb, that the casual eye would have passed it by.

The wind blew hard, just then, and parted a streak of soft dark gray fur. Then the outline of a halfgrown woodchuck became clearer. He was sleeping there in the warm sunshine, unmindful of my approach. His head was close down to the bark, the little ears relaxed. Not the slightest motion could I see, except the movement of the flanks, in sound and dreamless slumber.

I found a little chip and threw it lightly at the sleeping baby. He drowsily awoke, blinked, yawned, stretched himself, and looked about him, half awake. He had not yet discovered that I was foreign to his forest home. I wanted to see what would happen when he saw me, so I threw a heavy twig which landed on his head. Startled, he raised up on his haunches, and caught sight of me, at the place where he had started up the branch.

He looked down for a safe landing in the brush, hesitated a fraction of a second, then sprang, lit on all fours, and scampered for his burrow.

They walked on then slowly toward Main.

Noel started at her "What do you mean?"

"Your scheme to be close to Julian Paige," Ruth Chester went on. "It's obvious and perfectly silly, if you're asking me."

"I'm not asking you and I'm not interested in your opinion," Noel retorted. A flame of anger rushed to Ruth Chester's olive cheeks She looked at Noel with blazing dark eyes "I'll tell you this anyway," she went on, restraining her anger with a great effort. "Julian doesn't care a rap about your money He's not in love with you. And even if he were, he'd never marry you. There's a darn good reason why—" her voice broke with anger then and she turned and walked away.

NOEL HAD never heard so much restrained fury as there had been in Ruth Chester's voice when the nurse had spoken her mind She had said that Noel would never marry Julian Paige for "a darn good reason" Noel pondered over that a long time She couldn't imagine what Ruth Chester had meant

As Noel walked to her job at the Peacock that night, she could hardly get her mind off of Ruth Chester and how coldly furious she had been. From the first moment she had seen her, Noel had thought Ruth Chester was madly in love with Julian. Now she had given herself away, even though Julian might be thoroughly unconscious of it.

Also Ruth Chester was even prettier than Noel had realized And she had the advantage of working in the clinic next to Julian's office, and could run in and see him all during the day when she was not busy She had every chance in the world to win Julian's love. Noel had to admit to herself And Julian admired Ruth very much. He was always saying something complimentary about her.

There wasn't any use trying not to see it, Noel told herself unhappily. Ruth Chester was a dangerous rival, and a very determined one.

But Noel finally managed to dismiss her from her mind. She had to put all her thoughts on her work. It wasn't going to be easy even then, though Laurie had given Noel a number of pointers on what to do, and what not to do. So Noel wasn't going to work in ignorance on her first evening.

As soon as she entered the Peacock, she went to the dressing room and slipped into the gold tulle evening dress and the high-heeled gold sandals, which she had brought with her in a pasteboard box

There ware many girls in these, putting on makeup, and adding last minute touches to their hair. Most of them spoke to her, recognized her as a new girl and seemed friendly enough

Noel found dancing at the Peacock wasn't nearly so unpleasant as she had feared it would be All the men with whom she danced treated her with respect Noel hadn't been sure they would She had been afraid because she was paid to dance with them, and anybody could ask her for a dance, that some of them might feel they could take liberties, might even insist on going home with her.

But nothing like that happened Noel learned that it was against Luigi's rules for the girls to accept the patrons of the Peacock as escorts home. "Just one of Luigi's crazy ideas," one of the girls told her. But it gave Noel a sense of relief

Quite fortunately for her, the Peacock was only about five blocks from the rooming house on Court street. So she walked the short distance alone.

Laurie was there in the lumpy bed, sleeping soundly. Noel crawled in beside her, and suddenly, it seemed as if her whole body was one intense ache. Once she was relaxed, she found even the slightest movement meant agony.

It seemed to Noel that she had been asleep only about 10 minutes when Laurie awakened her the next morning. But it was 8:30.

Laurie was up, looking rested and refreshed "I hated to call you," she said, "but we've got to be up and doing, you know. Besides, I've got you some hot coffee."

"Coffee! Where on earth—?" Noel sat up in bed. To her surprise, she found the pain was all gone, even though she had felt when Laurie awakened her that nothing on earth could ever induce her to move again.

Then Laurie was pouring the coffee in a 10-cent store cup which was badly chipped. Once Noel would have turned away in loathing from such a cup, but the aroma of the coffee was irresistible. She held out her hands eagerly.

Laurie, rummaging around in the cabinet of the old-fashioned washstand, found a saucer to go with the cup, even though it didn't match. Then she placed the cup and saucer on the upended top of a small drawer she had withdrawn from the washstand just above the cabinet part. "Modom, here is your tray," she said playfully "Shall I draw your bawth now?"

Noel didn't look at her for a moment. "How on earth did you manage such a miracle?" she asked at last.

Laurie explained that she had bought the coffee with some of the money Noel had given her, saying that it was lots cheaper to have a bit of breakfast in their room than to go out to a cafe.

"Yes, I suppose so," Noel agreed thoughtfully. Then she said, "You'll have to teach me to—make coffee."

Laurie's eyes grew wide. "You mean you don't know how?"

"Not how to—to make it as you do," Noel evaded.

Then Laurie said: "Feel stiffish this morning?"

"I was just about dead until you gave me the coffee. But I'm feeling grand now." Just to prove it Noel sprang up and did a little dance step around the room in her pajamas, the cup and saucer still in her hand.

"Be careful of the china," Laurie giggled. "It might get chipped

"That would be too—too awful, Noel laughed.

Then Laurie wanted to know how things had gone at the Peacock. "Better than I hoped," Noel told her, beginning to bursh her loose golden curls, and wondering how soon she'd be able to manage a bath in the bathroom down the hall. Yesterday she had made four trips with soap and towel before she had found it unoccupied When she had a chance to get in at last she found it most uninviting So much enamel had peeled off the tub, it looked as if it had a bad case of scrofula.

But Laurie, it appeared, had already managed a bath "You have to get there early," she said in answer to Noel's question as to when it would be best to try for a bath. "Any time around 8 o'clock you'll get the busy signal"

Then she explained that in an emergency you could get a bath of sorts in the bowl. Noel looked at it in superb distaste.

But Laurie was still thinking about Luigi's "So everything passed off okay, did it?"

Noel nodded "Nobody tried to get the least bit fresh But I had to dance every dance with a lot of cut-ins. Guess that was why I was so tired"

"If the men are not respectful, Luigi has them thrown out on their ears," Laurie said. "That's the one nice thing about the place It isn't the men you have to dance with that you have to—" but she didn't finish.

Noel was digging in her purse. "Here's your half of last night's handsome proceeds."

"Listen, you take this money," Noel thrust it into her unwilling hands. Then she said, "You're going to stay with me, aren't you, even when you get a job?"

"Do you want me to?" Laurie asked.

"Yes, I do. I want you very much You see, I like you," Noel said earnestly.

So that was all settled.

Book of the Week

"THE HORSE AND BUGGY DOCTOR," by Arthur E. Hertzler. (Harpers $2.75.)

One of the most satisfying books this reader has seen in a long while is still another of those books by doctors. Arthur E. Hertzler, dean of the Hertzler Clinic at Halstead, Kas., has gently and humorously told of his life with humanity in "The Horse and Buggy Doctor." It is a reasonably long experience he has to write about for as he expresses it, he is in the last half of the seventh inning.

Dr. Hertzler is called "Pop" by a whole community. He began playing with bottles at the age of four and got into the bad graces of the local clergyman when caught reading a book on anatomy some years later. He doesn't quite know why he decided to study medicine but he does recall that in those earlier days it was customary for the study to consist largely in attendance at lectures, and for the students to haze the lecturer out of the room when and if he proved a bore.

When "Pop" Hertzler began practicing he made his own examination table to save the 70-odd dollars he would have had to pay for a $10 table. It was the custom then for the physician to help his female patients disrobe for examination, the average in those times was, he adds, six petticoats. Temptation did not often raise its simpering head either, he insists that oftener than not, even after the six petticoats were removed, the patient was so fat that he was not much nearer the seat of trouble than he had been originally.

Lanterns, spades and a revolver were part of the country doctor's equipment in those days. Operations were as often as not performed on the kitchen table—some early day surgeons (though not Dr. Hertzler) held their knife in their teeth when not using it actively. Rides in the mud, battles with snow, trouble with superstitions, carelessness and intolerance were part of his lot.

But combined with this modest physician and surgeon's humor and determination were also ambition and common sense. These led him to the establishment of a hospital under circumstances where hospitals could not grow—a curious result of common sense. And to the kind of reward that goes to doctors who see humanity as a whole as well as the diseases that afflict it.

The book makes one chuckle, and think.—By J. S.

TAX COLLECTION LESS THAN HALF OF 8 YEARS AGO

Kolb Sees $1,200,000 Total for 1938 as Compared With $3,000,000 in 1930.

Predicting a real estate tax collection of approximately $1,200,000 for this year, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today that even if receipts reach expectations they will be less than a half-year collection in 1930.

Citing tax figures for eight years ago, before the 10-mill limitation went into affect, the treasurer said the county collected $1,501,819 in the second half period in 1930 and more than $3,000,000 for the entire year.

Although receipts so far this half total only $161,836, Kolb said collections for the final half of the year probably would reach $570,000. Approximately $625,000 was collected during the first half of the year.

Cites Reasons For Drop.

"The 10-mill limitation, appraisal reductions and delinquencies have been responsible for the huge drop in property tax receipts," the treasurer asserted

The limitation law prohibits the levying of property taxes beyond 10 mills per $1,000 without the approval of voters.

"Collections for this half are gaining daily," Kolb said, "and we have had no returns yet from any of the tax collectors in Shelby and other towns in the county."

He said he expected increasing receipts from public utilities and industrial firms late in the collection period to boost the total figure to his estimate.

Tax books for the second half period close Aug. 20.

DOCTOR'S FRANTIC EFFORTS TO SAVE BABY START HEART BEATING

CHICAGO—(INS)—"Dead" for more than one-half hour, Baby Robert Didier now cries lustily in perfect health after a country doctor won "one chance in 1,000" to save its life.

While the doctor told of the dramatic struggle between death and life, Mr and Mrs. Charles Didier, the parents of the 3-months-old child, recounted their 90-mile-an-hour automobile race to get medical aid for the baby

Mr and Mrs Didier were driving to their Chicago home from a summer resort, when the baby, wrapped in blankets on the back seat, fell to the floor of the car and apparently smothered to death in the covers.

When Didier discovered the child's mishap, he drove to a drug store at Wheeling, Ill., at a 90-mile-an-hour pace. He dashed into the store with the child in his arms but artificial respiration attempts there failed. The child was then rushed to the small hospital of Dr. Edward Larson.

Dr. Larson recalled.

"There was no sign of life in the baby when he was brought to the hospital. The body was cold The heart had stopped beating

"I administered adrenaline and then worked frantically at all the methods I knew to retain life The baby was placed in a tub of water as hot as the body could stand Then I tried artificial respiration and massaged the heart muscles with my hands

"Finally, to my great surprise, I heard an occasional heart thump I kept on working and the thumps came more steadily After two hours work the heart action was strong enough to operate by itself.

"I do not know how long the heart had been stopped."

Yep, We'll Agree 81-Year-Old Dad Is a Crackerjack

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George Boarman, the 81-year-old father of a new-born son, attributed his good fortune to his "standing in well with the Lord"

Boarman and his 21-year-old third wife decided to name the Baby Herbert. His first wife bore him 25 children, he said, and since about two-thirds of them were boys," he had a little trouble avoiding duplication in the naming

His second wife was childless.

The spry old man, who is a night watchman for a steamship line, is proud of his record as a father.

"Bet folks think I'm crackerjack, don't they?" he exclaimed

THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1938

It's not the fault of the automobile that it carries some people from bad to worse.

It seems to be some people's idea that, however little they know about things in general, they could at least be a congressman.

The stranger who gives the impression of having traveled across the state just to have a few minutes chat with you is probably a candidate for one of the minor state offices.

Big Vote Expected At Primaries.

PREDICTIONS that Mansfield and Richland county's primary vote next Tuesday will total considerably larger than ordinary are apparently justified by the interest being shown in leading contests among both Democrats and Republicans.

On the Democratic ballot it is the contest for nomination as governor that stands tops, with a bitter battle raging between Martin L. Davey, aspirant for third term, and Charles Sawyer, member of the Democratic national committee.

This ballot also offers several other interesting contests, with eight contenders for nomination as candidate for lieutenant governor, and George White opposing the renomination of present Senator Robert J. Bulkley.

Most interesting of the contests on the Republican primary ballot is that of Robert A. Taft and Supreme Court Judge Arthur H. Day for nomination as candidate for United States senator. This ballot also offers choice from among two candidates for lieutenant governor: four for secretary of state; five for state treasurer and two for attorney general.

Except in the case of representative to the legislature, in which there are two candidates in each party, there are no contests for nomination to Richland county offices.

Widespread public interest in Mansfield and the city school district in the school bond issue proposal, which is also to be voted on next Tuesday, is expected to add materially to the city total.

Information in regard to absentee voting, by persons who expect to be out of the city next Tuesday, can be secured at the office of the board of elections, court house basement. Votes can also be cast by persons who are sick or disabled.

Attention is again being called to the requirement that all ballots must be marked with a BLACK LEAD PENCIL. This is being stressed because of the fact that at previous elections some ballots have been thrown out as a result of being marked with a colored pencil or a fountain pen—which does not comply with the law.

Less Foreign Travel.

AMERICAN travel abroad was increasing during the month of June, but taken as a whole over the first six months of the year it was off about 23 per cent from the year before. Two causes are apparent for this. One is the recession in business during the past winter, which left many people afraid to spend money on summer pleasure which might be required by more serious needs next winter. The other cause is the increasing unsettlement in Europe. Pictures of dwellers in the quiet, rural districts of green and beautiful England, practicing the wearing of gas masks, do not lure the foreign visitor.

Another summer should see the first cause growing less. And there is still hope that the militaristic countries of the Old World may come to their senses. After all, it must be far pleasanter to take dollars from travelers who part with them gladly, than to do without these dollars and dig up others for the dubious privilege of fighting harmless neighbors.

Freak Houses Lose Favor.

THE freak house is out of style. The "dolled-up house"—all full of queer gables and unnecessary angles, is no longer in favor. The Small House Architectural League, whose object is to provide homes of low cost and good architectural design, maintains that simple lines are more apt to be good lines. And it finds that the freak houses do not wear well. They not only require far more costly repairs than the simpler ones, but the eye soon tires of them.

Then, too, fussy houses are more difficult to resell than plain ones, and hence are poorer security for mortgage loans. The general public is now favoring houses easier to build and to maintain.

After all, the appearance of a good small house of simple lines can be changed greatly by variations in planting, window-boxes or paint. Whatever the color and landscaping design, the house remains pleasing. But the queer little triangles and trapezoids of the gingerbread house cannot be disguised. A well-proportioned exterior gives continued pleasure through the years to the owner, the neighbors and the casual passer-by. Likewise the simply proportioned room lends itself to a variety of decorations, and hence to change of appearance at little cost. Architectural societies which are laying stress on these matters are doing a good work.

Necessary Minorities.

DR. FRANK KINGDON, president of the University of Newark, certainly will never be sought by Hitler as an advisor. Dr. Kingdon believes that the only man "who has anything to contribute to us is the one who differs from us." In the same way, expanding the theory, he believes that a national life without active minorities grows "uniform and at last anemic."

"The interclashing of cultures sifts and reveals the values of all men," said Dr. Kingdon in a recent address to a group of educators. "Cultural interplay builds social strength. Hitler in the long view is destroying the very Germany he seeks to exalt by eliminating minority groups. Exclusion is the technique of decline."

Perhaps only time and experience can win a hearing for such theories in Germany and Italy. Though they are taken for granted by most Americans, their vigorous re-statement occasionally should be good even here for families, educators, political parties, civic organizations and public officials.

And just to think! Jules Verne's "Around the World In Eighty Days" was merely a flight of fancy.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — So rapidly is the government expanding its purchases of surplus commodities for relief distribution that the expanded outlays of last year will be nearly doubled during the coming 12 months.

The purchases are specifically intended to peg prices by removing temporary surpluses, principally those affecting farmers. Nevertheless, a second purpose is recognized. That is to get the surplus of food to hungry mouths in the shortest possible way.

The federal surplus commodities corporation, an agency of AAA, does most of the buying. Recently the WPA stepped into the field to buy $10,000,000 of surplus men's, women's, and children's clothes which the garment trades complained were depressing the market and preventing employment of thousands of needle workers.

This was the largest single purchase but a stream of smaller ones by the commodities corporation more than makes up.

It's Going Up

THE buying program, started in 1933 in connection with the destruction of "little pigs," ran to about $1,300,000 a month during 1936 and most of 1937. It speeded up to $2,600,000 a month during late 1937 and early 1938. This past May and June it swelled abruptly to about $9,000,000 a month and is scheduled to average $7,000,000 monthly for another 12 months. The corporation asked even more but congress rejected its request for $50,000,000 extra.

The corporation does not buy major crops. It buys primarily surplus portions of perishable crops and processed products in local areas where removal of even a small amount affects prices. For instance, recently there was a surplus of dairy products in the Wisconsin area. FSCC took off $200,000 worth to keep the price from sagging. Similarly, in a 10 months period ending May 1 the corporation bought 70,550,000 pounds of rice, 45,100,000 pounds of dried prunes, 5,600,000 bushels of apples 1,720,000 boxes of oranges and grapefruit, 10,170,000 pounds of cabbage, 8,320,000 pounds of butter and like quantities of numerous other commodities. The operations reached into 45 states.

Sometimes the corporation buys directly from individual farmers of processors. More often it buys from central markets, trusting the benefits will trickle back to the farmers.

FSCC says it is difficult to estimate how much such purchases affect prices. There is no way of guessing the drop if the surplus remained.

Both Sides of It

CONSUMERS protest they are denied lower prices but FSCC retorts that low farm prices help nobody in the long run. Arguments are endless. Merchants say the government artificially holds up prices with one hand while with the other it distributes free goods to the merchants' customers. Further, they argue that buying up the surplus simply encourages further production.

H. R. Tolley, AAA administrator, concedes that without crop control and other guides the buying would be useless. He says the purchases do not ordinarily raise prices, but prevent slumps. WPA claims that by its $10,000,000 clothing investment it benefited 160,000 clothing trades workers at the same time it obtained clothes for relief distribution.

Lump figures show purchases totaling about $17,000,000 in fiscal 1937, on up to $45,000,000 in 1938, mostly in the three months ending last June 30. The estimate for 1939 is $79,000,000, and more if the next congress wills it.

The system is a short cut on the standard business pattern, but like many another federal spending program it is popular with state officials. Since most of the food purchased is turned over to state relief agencies, they favored a 1939 program of $175,000,000.

Timely Editorial

Pass the Apiteasers!

Simplification of the wording on menus has been approved by the hotel and restaurant men of the nation and another formidable conglomeration of letters is to go by the boards. Henceforth "hors d'oeuvres" is to vanish back to France whence it came, while an easy-to-say and quite understandable good old American word, "apiteasers," will take its place.

This, indeed, is a victory for diners-out, who never did fully master the art of rolling the French phrase around the tongue, anyway. The millions of American men and women who patronize hotels and restaurants every day are to be credited for this welcome change. They achieved the victory through the simple expedient of not ordering hors d'oeuvres, even when an urgent waiter attempted to cajole them.

So, the managers of the eating places decided that if hors d'oeuvres wouldn't sell, because people couldn't pronounce the crazy words, they'd just rename these pre-dinner appetite stimulators. Apiteasers is the result, and apiteasers is now the official name.—Ohio State Journal.

DOG DAYS IN EUROPE

Earle's Case Seen As Boomerang

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania, in spiking a grand jury investigation of his administration, makes out a pretty good case — theoretically.

George H. Earle

He made it out, however, at a rather unfortunate juncture.

There is to be an investigation anyway, it is true, but it will not be a grand jury quiz. Now the governor's political party is dominant in the Pennsylvania legislature; it might not be able to dominate an inquizitorial grand jury.

Of course the Earle administration may not need to be whitewashed, but if any whitewash does happen to be needed, the inference is that the legislature is likelier to apply it than a grand jury would have been—if the governor and the legislature between them had not succeeded in putting an extinguisher upon the latter method.

* * *

"FAVORITE SON"

George Earle not only is Pennsylvania's governor. He is the candidate of Pennsylvania Democrats for the senate at next November's election. He also is recognized as having 1940 presidential aspirations.

Naturally he has rivals; even enemies. They have made some vicious charges against his gubernatorial record, and against the doings of 13 other Democratic state officials and party executives. There are charges of having extorted money from lesser state employes and of having otherwise coerced them, for political purposes.

But the accusers wanted to do more than make mere informal charges; they wanted to make them official. So they got their stories into the hands of the Dauphin county grand jury, which, on Aug. 8, was to have begun to investigate them.

EARLE'S ARGUMENTS

Dauphin is the county in which Harrisburg, the state capital, is situated, giving the inquiry a certain air of statewide consequence.

Still, Governor Earle argued, Dauphin is, after all, just one Pennsylvania county; the quiz might just as well have been started in any one of Pennsylvania's other counties—or all of them at once, creating an impossible multiplicity of jurisdiction for any single defendant to answer charges in simultaneously.

Moreover, the governor pointed out, he is a state, not a county official.

There is as much distinction between a county and a state, he said, as there is between a state and the federal government. A local United States grand jury, he added, can't undertake to impeach the president, and neither can a strictly local grand jury undertake to impeach a governor; it takes congress to investigate a president and a state to investigate a governor.

LEGISLATURE VS. COURT

This sounds like fairly good reasoning.

Governor Earle submitted it to the Pennsylvania supreme court and the supreme court gave him the ha-ha.

The Pennsylvania supreme court essentially is Republican—left over from the days when the G. O. P. was solid in Pennsylvania. Its view was that Pennsylvania laws did not bear out the governor's contention.

Accordingly Earle called the legislature into extra session to fix the law to suit his requirements, and the legislature did it. It was his kind of a legislature. True, the legislature takes up the investigation. But is it likely that a legislature which was so amenable to his wishes will find against him as to "extortion and coercion" of lesser officials, for political purposes?

UNFORTUNATE JUNCTURE?

In short, Earle's argument is quite convincing.

Nevertheless he employs it at a time when it quite distinctly is to his own advantage.

What he says is all right; the only criticism is of the moment when he said it.

Do Polishes Harm Nails?

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Both in scientific medical circles and in lay groups, domestic and social, there has been a great deal of recent interest in the question of whether nail polishes and lacquers cause any irritation of the surrounding skin or any harm to the nails.

The basis for nail lacquers usually is ethyl acetate or butyl acetate. This is the solvent, in which nitrocellulose is dissolved. Talc and pigments are added to the consistency and color required.

But this does not exhaust the possibilities of the ingredients used in various preparations. Other solvents such as acetone, cellosalve and cellosalve acetate; adds to solvents as tolnene, xylene, benzene, naptha, nitrocellulose of various viscosities, drying in from ten to forty seconds, pyroxylin, and plasticisers such as castor oil, trycresyl phosphate, butyl stearate, camphor or resin.

Many of these have possible irritating effects on the skin or drying and crumbling effects on the nail. From the acetates mentioned, acetic acid may be formed and to this has been ascribed the nail injury, consisting of brittleness and cracking.

Writes Of Brittle Nails.

Castello in his book on diseases of the fingernails, writing of fragile and brittle nails, says that "the cause in some cases is excessive and too frequent manicuring. The constant use of colored enamels and ethyl acetate or acetone to dissolve them produces the excessive dryness and consequently the nails lose their elasticity. Cuticle removers, which consist of solutions of potassium hydrate, are also contributing factors."

Lacquer removers can also be toxic to certain people.

This, I realize, is a somewhat extremist view and sounds something like a husband sounding off on the subject. As a matter of common observation, these lacquers and polishes do not do any harm, in the great majority of cases. In general, the ingredients cause irritation only to specially sensitive people. Anyone, however, who uses lacquer and begins to have brittle fingernails or scruffy skin around the nailbeds, should blame the lacquer and stop using it at once.

And on general principles, I am perfectly willing to range myself on the side of the husbands, because the highly colored finger and especially toenails (seen on the beaches) are among the most hideous sights of modern civilization.

Can You Get Things Done?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THINGS and things and things to be done. . . . What a relief to have the burden of details off our backs. As it is, most of us live our days with strain. We move about under pressure, bored and frustrated by the mass of duties that never end. Is it any wonder that the feeling of fatigue is the most common of all sensations?"

It's Dr. David Seabury, famous psychiatrist, speaking . . . singing the Never-Get-My-Job-Done blues. Singing them for all of us who "can never catch up with our work" . . . in a slender little volume that unfolds a Joe Louis punch—"HOW TO GET THINGS DONE" (Julian Messner, Inc., Pub.).

"Bored and frustrated"—that certainly describes plenty of lives, doesn't it? People who are always wanting to do Something Big but never achieve it because they're pestered and prevented by the endless petty trifles which get in their way. At least, that's their excuse and they really believe it's the truth. If only they had the breaks some folks have . . . folks who are never disturbed or distracted just when they start out to do something . . . who don't have to spend their lives running 'round in dizzy circles, getting nowhere—lucky dogs!

But do these serene mortals, whose kitchens and offices are always in order, who get everything done with time to spare, really owe their good fortune to Luck?

"NO," says Dr. Seabury, "THEY OWE IT TO PLANNING. THAT'S THE MAIN SECRET OF THEIR SUCCESS—"

Of course, he explains, that isn't quite all there is to it. There must be both control and enthusiasm—a co-ordinated program of thought and feeling. But it all comes under PLANNING. Deciding what you'll be and do with the material on hand . . . what you'll PREVENT as well as what you'll ACHIEVE . . . what deserves immediate attention and what can wait or be dropped entirely.

Take, for example, these "detail chasers." Good phrase, isn't it? We've all seen 'em . . . perhaps been one of them ourselves. "Fixated natures," Dr. Seabury calls them, "at the mercy of every little nig nag that comes along." The people who have made no orderly pattern for their lives, to which they force other people, other demands, to largely conform . . . who have built no guards against intrusion, but allow themselves to be yanked hither and yon by any circumstance, however trivial.

The couple—there's one in every circle of friends—who are "going to do something worth while with their evenings." He's going to take that correspondence course in salesmanship . . . she's going to try her hand at short stories. But each night something goes wrong. Maybelle phones, gossips for an hour. Or one of them runs across the old jig-saw picture, or they listen to that radio serial. At the end of six months they are still as far from "doing something worth while with their evenings." Yet other couples, with just as many demands on their time, pile up records.

But how do they get that way? Why do some become "masters of their fate" while others are kicked around like stray pups?

"BECAUSE THEY DON'T WANT TO GROW UP," says Dr. Seabury.

The first accept life as it comes—adapt themselves to its pressures. The second cling to their babyhood, dreading the discipline and responsibility of maturity, then whimper and snarl when the Big Adventure shoves them around.

Get that book! It's only 277 pages long—but each one of them's loaded for bear!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Until a year or so ago I was as curious as anyone as to who would play Scarlett O'Hara, but now it hardly seems important anymore. They have fiddled around too long. Scarlett is still Scarlett and Tara is a symbol, but a fever burns you only so long. Then you cool out. I think that's happened to a lot of people, and if I were a stockholder in the company that is to film GWTW I think I would be darn good and sore about it. Because somebody missed the boat. And there isn't any excuse for missing a boat like that.

* * *

When you think back and consider how you felt about the book yourself the first time you read it, when you think of the exictement and mass hysteria and the unbelievable possibilities for such a picture if it were timed just right, it makes you a little sad and a little sick. Because here was a chance to land the boxoffice high of all time. And they muffed it. And plums like that don't grow on trees—not even in Hollywood. They just happen, and if you don't pick 'em the birds get 'em. Then where are you? You're standing on a high hill with a bag in your hand looking for something that isn't there anymore.

EVERY morning at four o'clock a squadron of big trucks leaves New York and heads up toward West Point. Those trucks are heavily guarded. They have machine guns and rifles and revolvers. And if you get in the way of one, or attempt, even innocently to block traffic you are apt to find yourself in serious difficulty.

For they are filled with silver that the government is removing to West Point for safe keeping. Just as the gold is now being stored in a vault in Kentucky. The contract is for a million bars to be transferred. And each bar weighs 75 pounds. Under the present setup they are moving 5,000 bars a day.

These operations are under the supervision of the federal coast guard. But the truck drivers aren't federal men. They are just good truck drivers. And there's some labor trouble. And so every morning, while the silver is being loaded into the trucks, a line of pickets encircles them, screaming "Unfair." As yet, no noses have been bloodied.

Meanwhile a heckler wants to know: "Why don't you forget about New York and write a fish and game column? That's all you think about anyway." And then he adds this little clipping, taken, I imagine, from some sporting magazine:

"Behold the Fisherman . . . He Riseth up Early in the Morning and Disturbeth the whole Household . . . Mighty are His Preparations . . . He goeth forth full of Hope, and when the Day is Far Spent he Returneth, smelling of Strong Drink, and the Truth is not in Him."

I wish I knew who wrote that. It's a peach. I'm going to send copies of it to a lot of people I know.

One of the swimming pool proprietors, fearing for the safety of his guests, has turned poet and written little couplets (?) which have been placed at advantageous points around the pool. One of them is:

"Don't dive in the shallow end. If you do where the body shall we send?"

It's things like this that sometimes drive people to destruction.

TAFT PREDICTS FARMERS WILL TURN TO G. O. P.

Senatorial Candidate Scores New Deal Crop Reduction, Spending in Talk Here.

Striking at the New Deal's crop reduction program, Social Security, and the "unlimited spending of public funds," Robert A. Taft, candidate for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator, predicted that farmers and small business men will turn to the Republican party this year, in a talk last night at Mansfield High school auditorium.

Taft was the principal speaker at the county's major Republican rally of the primary campaign. Six other district and county candidates spoke briefly at the meeting which was arranged by an independent group of county Republicans, headed by William Johns. Atty. Herbert H. Schettler presided at the rally which was attended by 250.

Although Taft and his G. O. P. opponent for the nomination, Judge Arthur H. Day of Cleveland, have engaged in a heated primary battle, Taft did not mention Day in his talk last night.

"I can't see why we can't conduct a campaign without name-calling and arousing bitterness that may damage the party's chances for victory in the fall," Taft said. "I intend to present the fall campaign issues now, so the voters will know where I stand on important national issues," he added.

Favors Adequate Tariff.

Asserting that farmers are in revolt against the New Deal's attempt to restrict their crop acreage, the Cincinnatian proposed an "adequate protective tariff, lifting of the ban on crop production and the development of new farm products" as a solution to the farm problem.

"As a result of the New Deal's farm program, the United States has been forced to import in recent years the greatest amount of farm products in its history," Taft said. "A silly thing about the crop plan is that only farmers in the middle west must cut their corn acreage, while those in the south increased theirs by 5,000,000 acres this year."

Calling the Social Security plan "a failure from the beginning," he said: "The so-called Social Security reserve bonds are going into government bonds, and that means that cash received are paid out of the old age fund into the treasury, while government bonds, or IOU's, are deposited in the reserve fund."

"The cash in the treasury is then paid out to meet the government deficits, so the government will have to tax the people again to pay the interest on the bonds in order to pay the old age pensions. We might as well recognize that old age pension should be paid out of current revenues," he added.

Other candidates who were introduced and spoke briefly were Col. Oliver H. Dockery, Newark, and Philip Wolfe, Mansfield, candidates for the 17th district congressional nomination; C. G. L. Yearick, Newark, candidate for congressman-at-large; Harry H. Maxwell, Lexington, candidate for state representative; John C. Friday, for county commissioner, and Earl A. McFarland, for state central committeeman from the 17th district.

Mrs. Verner Metcalf, Marietta, and Mrs. Thomas J. Herbert, Cleveland, wives of the candidates for the attorney general nomination, spoke in behalf of their husbands.

Harold A. Bruce, member of the Mansfield school board, outlined the objectives of the proposed $550,000 school bond issue to be voted on next Tuesday.

REPAINT JOB

Commissioners Ok Yellow for Mail Boxes But White's Required.

SEATTLE—(AP)—Postoffice officials shook their heads sadly when informed the county commissioners had let their weakness for yellow paint go too far.

In a spirit of "clean up week," scores of rural mail boxes were painted a brilliant yellow with county paint and WPA labor. White is prescribed in postoffice regulations.

RABBIT'S FOOT WINS FOR SONNY

Soap Box Champ Worried for It's His Buddy's and Both Can't Wear It at Akron.

It's a terrible situation and Sonny's family and all the neighbors around his Lincoln Heights home are worried about it. Another rabbit's foot might not work. Gee, it's fierce

Not that Sonny (his real name's Loren but he's never been called that and doesn't answer to it) hasn't a lot of faith in that car of his. It's built just like the car that carried Bobby Ballard, White Plains, N. Y., to the international championship last year. Bobby wrote a book about his car and that book has been Sonny's Bible for the last six weeks. Because even with a good car, a fella has to have luck.

Sonny not only built his car himself but he earned every penny of what it cost, $9.25. He sold ice cream bars throughout the city during the week and papers on Sunday. Every bit of the car was new this year except the wheels and axles. He bought new wheels but when he tried the car out, found that they were just a little slower than the wheels on the old car. So he changed 'em.

He gave his car a workout on the Coolridge golf course hill, and had his father or some of the neighbors time him. That's why everyone in that section of town was rooting for Sonny yesterday. And each time that he made changes and improvements, he added a little something to his speed. He was repaid yesterday when he made the 950-foot course in 31 seconds which beat last year's time by two and six-tenths seconds.

Sonny's opponent in the finals yesterday was A. J. Watson, 14, one of the best losers and best sports of Mansfield "racing circles." "A. J." is really his name and not just his initials; his grandfather was always known as "A. J." and that's what he was named.

Well, anyway, after A. J. had congratulated his victorious fellow racer yesterday at the track, he came up to The News-Journal office where Sonny was being interviewed, just to tell him that it was swell Sonny won the race and to wish him good luck at the national races.

When A. J. came into the room, Sonny jumped off his chair and said: "C'me on over and sit on my chair. It's a pretty hot day." There was a world of understanding in his boyish voice.

There were two big thrills yesterday for the champ; one when he crossed the finish line, and another when he rode down town and around the business district under police escort, with the sirens on the motorcycles of a city officer and a state trooper screaming every foot of the way.

His hair was standing on end and perspiration running down his face, as he climbed out of the Goodrich service truck. "Boy," he said in an awed voice, "I bet that's the only time in my life that I crash every red light in town and don't get pinched for it!"

700 TAKE PART

Softball Heads List of Y Mid-Summer Activities.

More than 700 boys and young men have taken part in activities conducted by the Y. M. C. A. during the months of June and July according to the reports of Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary, and Donald Cram, physical director, given at the mid-summer meeting of the "Y" board of directors Wednesday evening at the Evergreens cafeteria.

Heading the activities with the largest number of participants were the three kittenball leagues conducted each summer by the "Y." The three leagues, Church, Commercial and Club, attracted 350 players during the two-month period, the report showed. There are 22 teams in the three leagues.

The day camp, latest activity to be conducted by the "Y," since it has opened has had more than 100 boys taking part in the program there. Life saving classes conducted at the "Y" camp at Camp Nelson Dodd, and the Liberty park pool have 24 boys registered.

In addition to these activities, according to Chapman, Camp Nelson Dodd and the Y. M. C. A. building have attracted large numbers of young boys taking part in various activities.

his speedster into position behind the starting line, the steering cable broke. The car was carried to the Goodrich repair pit where a new cable was quickly installed.

Among the interested spectators during the afternoon was Lester Griebling, winner of the 1937 derby. Lester was not eligible to enter the races this year as one championship bars a boy from entering another year. Before the races started Lester inspected the cars interestedly and was at the finish line in the final. Incidentally, he looked pretty snappy in the white derby uniform he wore last year at the finals in Akron.

* * *

Donald Cram, director of this year's derby, looked more like the pit man at the beginning of the kids' classic. He, together with Harold Burns, Carl Pollock, R. L. Kries and John Irvine, had worked at putting up the barrier fences from 5 p. m. Tuesday until 3 a. m. Wednesday. Then at 8:30 a. m. Cram came back and worked alone on the job until the hour of the derby. He was covered with dirt and perspiration and hadn't shaved in 48 hours. It wasn't until after the races started that the director had time to go home, clean up and return to the tracks in spotless white.

* * *

Henry Ford, 15, was one of last year's contenders who entered again this year. He drove an entirely new car which was, he said, five seconds faster than last year's model.

* * *

A new time-saving feature of the races this year was the two-way telephone which connected the starters with the judges at the finish line. As soon as a heat was finished the time keepers called the winner and time to the men up the hill at the starting line.

* * *

Stationed mid-way along the course was the Red Cross first aid station manned by a doctor and nurses. During the afternoon they took care of several scratched legs and skinned shins.

* * *

It took a lot of people to make a success of the derby. . . . And it would be impossible to name them all. . . . One of the contributing factors was the advertising done by the T. R. Sammons Outdoor Advertising company. . . . They donated 20 big billboards in Mansfield and vicinity, which "told the world" about the big event.

NEW RECORD SET IN ENROLLMENT

SHELBY—With about 600 boys and girls enrolled at the Shelby Summer playgrounds today, a new record was set this year for its registration, Miss Antonia Johnston, assistant supervisor, disclosed. Only 500 children enrolled last year.

Closing the playground activities today and tomorrow is the traffic town for children 4 to 7 years of age, Miss Johnston stated. Approximately 100 children are expected to attend the annual picnic of the Summer Playgrounds at Seltzer Memorial park tomorrow at noon.

SEEKS TO ADD TO COURTHOUSE

Detailed Plans Await Outcome of Negotiations for PWA Grant, Applied For.

MT. GILEAD—A proposal to build an addition to the Morrow county courthouse to relieve present crowded conditions and make room for all offices in the one building is under consideration by the county commissioners.

Because of lack of space the offices of the county election board, the board of health, board of education, extension service and farm security administration are located downtown, the rent being paid totaling approximately $100 monthly.

While the addition has been under consideration for several months no detailed plans have been made pending the outcome of negotiations for a federal PWA grant for a portion of the cost. Application forms have been received and will be filled out and formal application for the loan made within a few weeks.

Bond Issue Planned.

If the grant is approved the county would be required to pay only 45 per cent of the cost of such an improvement. Bonds would be issued for the remainder.

The proposal to build the addition and remodel the interior of the present structure was originally made by a special committee of the county bar association which recommended a number of changes in the courtroom. In their report the committee pointed out that the floor in the present courtroom was unsafe and that other repairs were necessary, including a new floor and roof.

DATE SET FOR ANNUAL OUTING

SHELBY—Upwards of 300 persons are expected to attend the 14th annual Lamp Works' picnic at Seltzer Memorial park Aug. 14, Mrs. Millie Ward, in charge of the event, said today.

The lamp works, one of the first manufacturing plants of its kind in the country, started operation in Shelby in 1898. The plant was disbanded in 1912 and re-organized in Cleveland under the name of the Nela Lamp Works. Many employes of the company moved to Cleveland when the business was moved.

State Auditor Visits City to Check If Workers Are Campaigning on State's Time.

by employes of the division of the aid for aged and the highway department," Welker said. "Many were told they would lose their pensions if they did not vote for Gov. Davey."

Auditor Ferguson said he had received no reports of specific violation in Richland county, but added that he would "look into the matter, anyway."

Auditor Ferguson spent about three hours in the city this afternoon in his investigation of reports of state employes using office hours to work for Davey and alleged intimidation of pensioners.

He said he would contact "sources of information" in the city regarding the accusations and would investigate the employing yesterday of two additional liquor store clerks, one in each of the state liquor stores in Mansfield.

One of the new employes had circulated petitions for Charles Sawyer, Davey's opponent for the Democratic nomination for governor, it was learned at Sawyer headquarters.

Ferguson warned state employes that their pay will be cut for time spent away from work, and told pensioners that they should not permit any state employe to intimidate them in behalf of Gov. Davey.

"Regardless of who is elected governor, your pensions will be paid if the earnings of the liquor department are such as to enable me, as state auditor, to pay them," Ferguson said in a warning to old age pensioners.

Ferguson added that "due to the falling off in liquor profits and the increase in operating expenses in the liquor and aid for aged departments, it is rather doubtful whether old age pensions will be paid during the month of August."

Reports to Secretary of State Kennedy said the Athens county election board had received four applications for a disabled voter's ballot from the same person. The Athens county prosecutor assigned a special agent to investigate conditions and the board of elections employed two others.

KIRKSVILLE, Mo. — (AP) — A man handed M. E. Cook, a jeweler, a wrist watch he had found on the running board of a car, to hold for a claimant. He also gave the license number of the car.

It was several days before Cook examined the watch and saw by repairs he had made that it was his wife's. He looked again at the license number—it was that of his own car.

Prizes Await Two Leading Units In Parade Tomorrow

Prizes of a movie party and ice cream bars await the two playground units that rate highest in tomorrow's parade of school children. The parade is a demonstration for the proposed school bond issue.

Ten playgrounds will take part in it, and prizes have been offered to the one having the largest number of youngsters in the parade, and the other is for the best and most original display.

The Madison theater will be host to the largest group immediately after the parade, and booked a special feature for the occasion. "Sky Giant," with Chester Morris and Richard Dix, two favorites of youngsters, was secured as a special treat for the prize winning playground.

Axtell's dairy will give an ice cream bar to every youngster in the playground unit that has the best display in the parade.

The parade forms at Sturges and Bowman at 4 p. m. and marches to the downtown district.

COUNTY SCHOOL FIGHT TURNS TO NEW FRONT

Farmer Asks Court to Name New Board Member, Holds Robinson Foe Ineligible.

The wrangle between members of the county board of education and Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, took a new turn today when Arthur Pugh, Weller township farmer, filed a request in probate court, asking for the appointment of a successor to F. W. Hunt, member of the county board.

Hunt, who moved to Mansfield from Monroe township last March, has been a leader in the move to oust Robinson on the grounds that the superintendent usurped the authority of the Union rural (Weller-Franklin townships) board in applying for a PWA grant for a new high school building.

Pugh, former member of the Weller township board, filed his motion as a taxpayer, contending that Hunt automatically became ineligible to serve on the county board when he moved to Mansfield.

Robinson, who has refused to discuss the movement to oust him, said today that he "had heard of" the probate court motion to replace Hunt through his attorneys, A. S. Beach and J. V. Will. The same lawyers represent Pugh.

Sets Hearing For Aug. 12.

Probate Judge C. J. Anderson, who must appoint the board member if Hunt is ruled ineligible to serve, set the hearing on the motion for 1:30 p. m. Aug. 12.

Judge Anderson and the four other members of the county board must determine Hunt's right to continue as a board member.

Elected to the board last November, Hunt contends that he is a legal member so long as he retains his residence and voting privilege in Monroe township, a part of the county rural district.

"I am living in Mansfield only temporarily and the attorney general ruled that I can continue to serve on that basis," Hunt said.

In an opinion to County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott last May 19, regarding Hunt's eligibility, Atty. General Herbert S. Duffy ruled he could continue to serve if he actually is a resident of a rural district.

Duffy pointed out, however, that the county board would have to determine the status of the temporary residence.

The county board is scheduled to hear charges of malfeasance against Superintendent Robinson on Aug. 27. The charges were filed by four members of the Union rural board.
